CZECHS SURRENDER TO HITLER

Vote Avalanche Sweeps School Bonds To Victory By 68.5 Per Cent Majority

ISSUE CARRIES IN 4 OF 6 WARDS AS 9,954 VISIT POLLS

$550,000 In Bonds, Assuring Million Dollar Building Program, Passes 6,816 to 3,138; Board Hails Victory as 'Forward Step.'

Mansfield said 'YES,' definitely YES, to a $550,000 bond issue yesterday and as a result a million dollar school building program was under way today—the most momentous step in improving the city's educational system in more than a decade.

A tremendous outpouring of the electorate that far exceeded expectations and even surpassed the record August primary vote, went to the polls in the special election to approve the issue—up for a decision for the second and last time.

By their action, the voters not only put their stamp of approval on the bonds, but, they officially accepted a $450,000 grant from the federal government which will make the building program possible and which hinged upon the passage of the issue.

Carrying four of the city's six wards, and five of the seven voting districts in the city school district, the $550,000 bond issue swept to victory with a majority of 68.5 per cent, 3.5 percentage points more than the 65 required for passage.

Had the bonds failed yesterday, the federal grant would have been withdrawn as PWA regulations require that the sponsor's funds must be available Oct. 1 if it is to receive the government money.

Elated at the success of the bond issue, members of the board of education today issued a statement, calling the approval of the question "a big step forward" for Mansfield, and expressing appreciation to the voters for their support of the project.

The board's statement said:

"We believe that Mansfield has taken a big step forward in approving the bond issue.

"A full time junior high school course is now assured for

Election Calls Set All-time Mark

If you don't think interest was at fever pitch last night in the outcome of Mansfield's special election on the school bond issue, just ask The News-Journal telephone operators.

In all, no less than 6,000 telephone calls were handled in The News-Journal office last night, and 4,000 of these in a two-hour period between 7 and 9 p. m.

In no previous election—even presidential — have so many calls been handled.

ACTION: Board Acts at Once to Prepare for Sale of Bonds

With the foundation laid for Mansfield's $1,000,000 school building program in the victory of the $550,000 bond issue yesterday, the board of education will meet late this afternoon to set machinery in motion for sale of the bonds and start of actual construction work.

Working against an Oct. 31 deadline for the beginning of construction on the project, the board will draw up resolutions asking for bids on the bonds and on three construction projects.

The board also will employ architects to complete plans for the buildings, which is only a formality, since three Mansfield firms were commissioned to draw plans for the entire project last spring when the program was first set up.

Certain to receive contracts for designing the buildings and improvements are Althouse and Jones, for the new Johnny Appleseed junior high school; Vernon Redding and Associates, John Simpson junior high school, and Charles Conklin, the shop addition at Senior high school and improvements to elementary buildings.

Preliminary plans were drawn up and submitted to regional PWA officials several months ago when the school board applied for the federal grant.

Although the PWA funds are being held in Chicago for the Mansfield project, the entire $450,000 will not be allocated at one time, the board was informed. A part of the funds will be allocated to get the building program under way, and the rest will be received at intervals as the building progresses. Each allocation must be matched by the Mansfield board from funds produced by the sale of bonds.

Work will be started first on the elementary buildings and then on the two junior high school buildings. Under the plan set up by PWA officials, the entire project

DETAILS: Two New Schools, Modernization of Nine Assured

Approval of the $550,000 school bond issue at yesterday's special election, with the $450,000 the city will get in PWA funds, will provide these benefits for Mansfield pupils:

1. The two new junior high school buildings to cost $450,000 each, one to replace the present John Simpson Junior high school.

2. A $25,000 addition at Senior high school to provide more space for expansion of the vocational arts department.

3. Modernizing of toilet facilities at eight elementary buildings in all parts of the city.

Only the Woodland and Western Avenue buildings, both built in recent years and comparatively modern, will not receive improvements under the $1,000,000 building and modernizing plan.

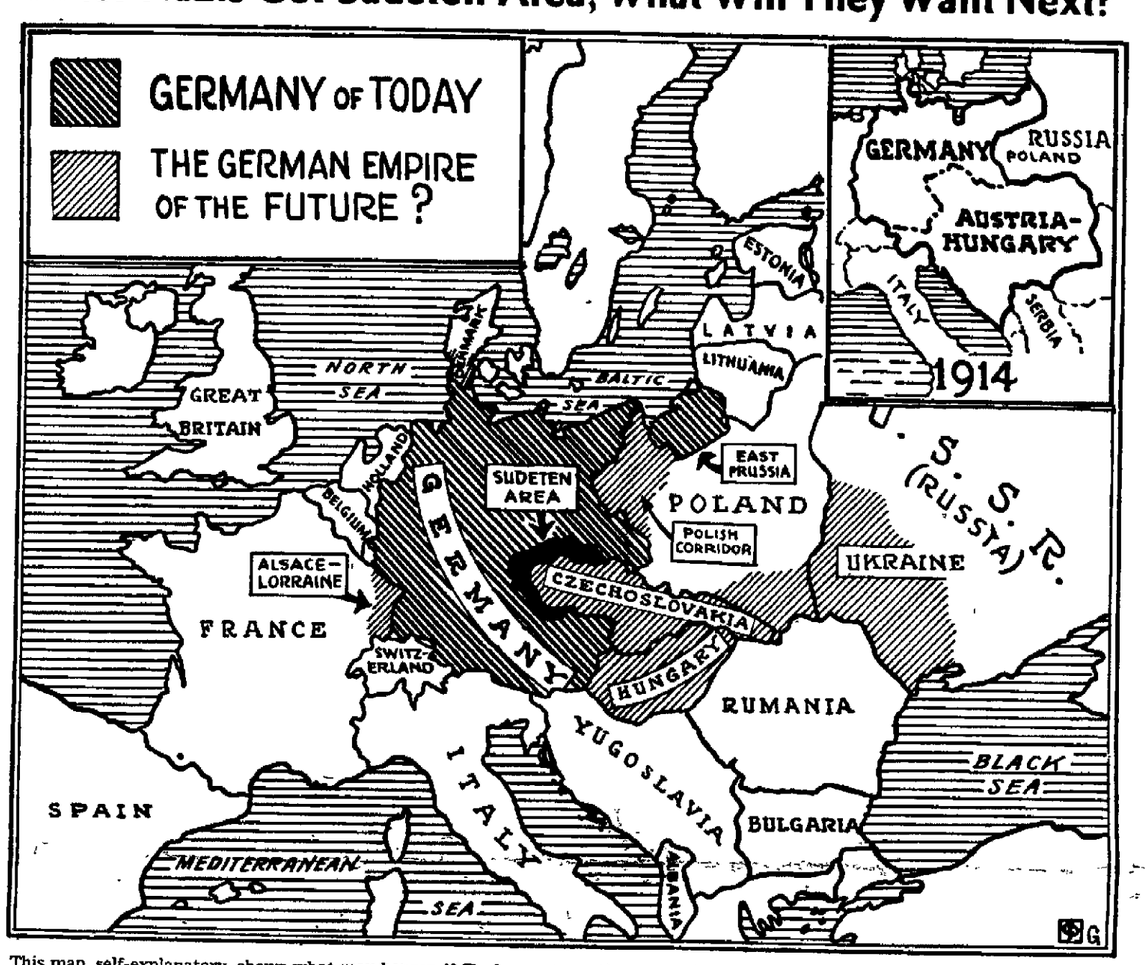
Funds for the elementary buildings will be distributed on the following basis:

Bowman school, $26,000; Bushnell school, $14,150; Hedges, $13,000; Newman, $5,600; Prospect, $4,100; West Fifth, $4,200; Carpenter, $3,900, and Brinkerhoff, $2,950.

Actual work on the huge program will start on the elementary buildings within the next month, board of education members said.

Under the PWA requirements, work must be started by Oct. 30 to permit the city to share in the federal funds. New building construction will not be started until later in the fall, after bids have been received and contracts let.

After Nazis Get Sudeten Area, What Will They Want Next?



This map, self-explanatory, shows what may happen if Fuehrer Adolf Hitler acquires control of the Sudeten German area of Czechoslovakia as a result of the present crisis. With Czechoslovakia removed as a barrier to German expansion eastward, France's other little entente allies, Rumania and Yugoslavia, might break away quickly and seek the shelter of German domination, according to European observers. Under such circumstances, France and Britain would be confronted with a German streak extending from the Rhine to the Black sea. Germany's expansion may include Hungary and the rich Ukraine region. In the west, Alsace-Lorraine, taken in the World war, and in the northeast, the Polish Corridor, bar to Germany's East Prussia, are other coveted areas.

O'CONNOR LOSES TO NEW DEALER

Victory by Fay First for Roosevelt Since 'Purge' Movement Began.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Rep. John J. O'Connor, Tammany Democrat and chairman of the house rules committee whom President Roosevelt denounced as a traitor to the New Deal, was defeated by the Democrats but nominated by the Republicans in yesterday's primary, returns showed today.

His Democratic defeat meant that he had lost the rules committee chairmanship. If he is reelected in November he will return to congress as a Republican after 20 years of service to Democratic Tammany Hall, and as a member of the minority party he will have to relinquish his important committee job to a Democrat.

His defeat was Mr. Roosevelt's first victory in the four state primaries in which he opposed conservative Democrats. Three senators, Ellison D. Smith, S. C.; Millard E. Tydings, Md., and Walter F. George, Ga., were renominated despite his opposition.

James H. Fay, one-legged war veteran endorsed by Mr. Roosevelt won the Democratic nomination. O'Connor defeated Allen W. Dulles for the Republican designation. Fay also was nominated by the American Labor party without opposition.

The Democrat vote, complete, was: Fay, 8,532; O'Connor, 7,799.

The Republican vote, complete: O'Connor, 2,953; Dulles, 1,969.

O'Connor's boast was that as a Democrat and Republican he had polled about as many votes as both his opponents in the 16th assembly or "gas house" district. But he protested the conduct of the election and said he might demand a recount in at least four precincts.

WOMAN HURT IN CROSSING CRASH

Tire Plant Employe, En Route to Work, Critically Injured as Engine Strikes Auto.

Enroute to work at 6 a. m. today, Mrs. A. D. Thompson, 35, R. D. 3, Shelby, was seriously injured when the automobile she was driving was struck by a northbound locomotive at the Longview avenue crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Mrs. Thompson, pinned in the wreckage, was carried 30 feet down the tracks on the front of the engine. She was extracted by the train crew and taken to the General hospital in an ambulance summoned by railroad employes.

Her condition at noon today was described as "critical." Physicians said she suffered internal injuries and that a call had been sent to the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company where she worked, asking volunteers for a blood transfusion.

Police and sheriff's deputies who were called, reported the accident occurred on the corporation line which runs down the center of Longview avenue. They said the automobile was in the city when first struck and then was carried by the engine into the county.

Mrs. Thompson had waited at the crossing for a 100-car southbound freight train to pass and had then driven directly into the path of the locomotive bound for the Crestline shops, authorities said.

The accident occurred just before daylight. The crossing has no protection other than the standard railroad crossing sign. It is not guarded by flasher lights or by watchmen.

The mishap was the sixth grade crossing accident to occur in Richland county since Jan. 1, five resulting in fatalities.

It also was the second accident

SUDETEN SECTORS GO TO REICH AS PEACE SACRIFICE

Deserted Prague Government Gives In To British, French Demands; Time Limit Request Only Reservation Made for Release of Territory.

(By International News Service)

PRAGUE—Deserted by her allies and menaced by a restive German army of almost 2,000,000 men, Czechoslovakia capitulated unconditionally today and agreed to sacrifice its territorial integrity in behalf of peace.

After hours of indecision in the face of an Anglo-French demarche warning that German invasion would be the only alternative to acceptance, the government of President Eduard Benes gave in to the minority settlement proposed by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain, calling for outright cession of predominantly German sections of the Sudetenland to the reich.

The only thing that remained necessary was to obtain sanction of Czechoslovakia's political party leaders. The cabinet exerted all its pressure upon them to convince even the most obstinate that refusal could mean nothing less than utter Czech extinction.

Formal announcement will be withheld until the parliamentary leaders approve. Full parliamentary acceptance may not even be asked. President Benes several days ago dissolved both houses of parliament sine die.

The only reservation asked by Benes and his aides—and almost pitiful breath of resistance against the double-decked juggernaut of military might and diplomatic pressure hurled against Czechoslovakia's fast-vanishing borders—was a request for a "reasonable time limit" for carrying out the terms of settlement.

Final Pressure.

Otherwise, the determined little president of Europe's determined little nation, yielded to superior force after final representations from Great Britain and France had driven him to the reluctant conclusion that refusal meant single-handed war against powerful Germany, with Czechoslovakia reduced to a battlefield of blood-stained ashes.

The moment his cabinet approved capitulation, Benes drafted a note for transmission to Great Britain and France. Its delivery was delayed only until the leaders of the various political parties in parliament had been convinced that no other step was possible.

Chief points of the proposal for making over Czechoslovakia on the lines laid down by Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler are as follows:

1. Outright cession to Germany of the Sudeten areas where the population is from 90 to 100 per cent German.

2.—Plebiscites in all the other districts where the German minority is heavily represented.

3.—An international guarantee protecting the future borders of emasculated Czechoslovakia.

The cabinet planned to meet again this afternoon to reach a decision on Germany's demand that Czechs be evacuated immediately from the 90 per cent German Sudeten areas.

The decision of the cabinet was reached at 9 a. m. after a round of discussions that lasted all night. Half an hour later the permanent parliamentary committee of 24 was summoned to hear the cabinet's report—and it was here that the cabinet's submission to Hitler met strong resistance.

In view of the situation at present, with the cabinet under sharp political fire, it was declared officially:

"Nothing definite can be said at present."

Meanwhile, Victor Leopold Delacroix, the French minister, called on President Eduard Benes at 9:45 a. m.

Two hours later an offical communique stated:

"The note of the Czech government in reply to representations by Britain and France (urging

GENEVA: Soviet Rips Britain And France for Bowing to Nazis

GENEVA—(AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, soviet Russia's foreign commissar, today accused France and Great Britain of capitulating to Adolf Hitler's demands and disclosed they had ignored Russia's offer of military help to protect Czechoslovakia.

The foreign commissar, in a scathing denunciation of League of Nations powers, said Russia stood ready to back up any collective action in defense of Czechoslovakia with arms and men.

In what he left unsaid, however, assembly delegates saw a statement that unless France fights for Czechoslovakia under the terms of the French-Czechoslovak agreement, Soviet Russia would do nothing to help Prague.

He accused Britain and France of avoiding a "problematical war today in return for a certain and large-scale war tomorrow."

Russia's spokesman told the League of Nations assembly that the price Britain and France were considering paying to prevent war over Czechoslovakia was "satisfying the appetites of insatiable aggressors by the destruction and mutilation of sovereign states."

He contended that the "League of Nations is strong enough to stop aggression by collective action," declaring that "aggressor states" still are weaker than a possible block of peaceful states.

"The policy of non-resistance to evil and of humoring the aggressor which we are being recommended to adopt by opponents of league sanctions," he warned, "will have no other end but that of strengthening the forces of aggression.

"Then the moment may really arrive at which aggressors have grown so strong that the League of Nations, or what remains of it, will be unable to deal with them even should it desire to do so."

GODESBERG: Gay Crowd Waits Hitler, Chamberlain Meeting

GODESBERG, Germany—(U P)—A gay and happy Godesberg awaited Adolf Hitler today, eager to cheer and salute him as he came to receive, from the Prime Minister of Great Britain, the surrender of the Sudeten area of Czechoslovakia.

A propaganda ministry bulletin, announcing that the Czechoslvak government had yielded to a reported British-French surrender ultimatum, had preceded him.

A thrill of pride and joy swept through the little town as the news circulated. The fuehrer had won.

Germans were careful to say that his approval must still be won by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain to the dismemberment plan as he and Premier Edouard Daladier of France had imposed it on Czechoslovakia.

But there was an atmosphere of geniality in German official circles.

The crisis was past, it was said, with the successive surrender of the British, French and Czechoslovak cabinets; details could be ironed out between Chamberlain and Hitler—with Hitler, naturally, holding the iron.

"This makes just a nice social call out of Herr Chamberlain's visit," said one observer.

There was a feeling, mixed in with this friendly atmosphere, however, that now, if the fuehrer choose, he might be able to force Britain and France to make even more concessions.

Chamberlain's airplane is to arrive tomorrow at Cologne and Hitler was expected to meet the British leader there.

Make Effort To Meet People In Strange City

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
(Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.)

At the moment the national capital is perhaps receiving more strange young people of both sexes than any other city in the United States. I've been deluged with letters from boys and girls sunk in loneliness, who pine for their old home towns, their friends, and whose comfortable pay envelopes fail to compensate for their loneliness.

Please bear in mind that every hour you waste in moping and feeling sorry for yourself in a strange city is time thrown away.

Whether you have strong religious convictions or not, your best bet is to look into what social activities church have to offer to strangers. These days good contacts are offered by all denominations; it's the safest door at which to knock, and offers the easiest approach.

Just sitting in church during a service won't help you. Call on the pastor and tell him you're a stranger and would like to be identified with some of the church activities. Join some of the young peoples' clubs and attend the meetings regularly.

Join a dancing class, but be sure it's one of the best. Causes will receive you with open arms.

The Red Cross offers unusual opportunities for making good solid friendships, and there are also the "Y" activities for both sexes. If your voice is not the duplicate of a crow's caw, join a singing society. There you are apt to meet "nice" people. And if you don't insist on wearing shoes with four-inch heels on every occasion, join a good hiking club.

When you've once made a few contacts, don't dwell on your loneliness, and rave over the beauties of "Squeedunk," as compared to the national Capital, New York, Los Angeles, or wherever you happen to find yourself. And here's wishing you the best of luck.

Use adhesive tape to place your lamp or radio cords around baseboards and corners to keep them out of sight.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I SAW that Lillian was watching her old friend narrowly, and a certain tenseness in her attitude did not vanish until she heard his reply.

He hesitated for several seconds before answering.

Recalls Proverb.

"You know the trite old proverb," he said at last, smiling maliciously at her. "'Needs must when the devil drives,' and you certainly are doubling for His Satanic Majesty today. But I have no recourse save to accept your terms. Noel, you will stay here until you are released. It sounds like a prison sentence, I know, but consider what a charming wardress you will have."

Noel's face was anything but happy as he said the expected thing.

"It will be a charming prison, I am sure," he answered.

"What about your luggage?" she asked. "Is it in this pile which Jim brought in?"

"Yes," Mr. Veritzen returned.

"Permit me to make an amendment," Harry Underwood struck in. "I'll call Jim, and let him take out the luggage. And Mr. Veritzen—you must know," he went on suavely, "that you're taking a risk of a pot shot coming out of here. It's fairly certain there are watchers 'out in them thar fields,' but they probably won't try to wing anybody who could not be either of the royal women. And by that rule, you and I are fairly safe"—his gesture linked his own magnificent physique with that of the elder Veritzen—"and if Jim escorts you out, you'll probably run the gauntlet—if there be one—safely. But that's one of the reasons why we can't afford to have callers."

No Flinching.

"I see," Mr. Veritzen said laconically.

"Well!" he went on. "I suppose there's no use delaying things any longer. Have you your luggage segregated, Noel?"

"All arranged, sir," his son said and Harry Underwood went to the door, keeping out of range, and signaled Jim standing just outside. Our faithful man came in with his usual quiet, stolid efficiency, and after the elaborate farewells which Philip Veritzen cannot help making, he left in Jim's wake, and we fairly held our breaths until the noise of the taxi's starting told us that he was safely on his way.

Stuffed Green Peppers — Wash peppers, cut off stem and take out seeds. You may parboil the peppers if you wish. If you do, drain them well and stuff with a hash made of leftover meat, chopped fine, and mixed with chopped onions and leftover sweet corn cut from the cobs. Season mixture well before putting into peppers.

Chocolate Crumb Pudding—Two squares unsweetened chocolate, one and one-third cups (one can) sweetened condensed milk, one-half cup water or one and two-thirds cups sweet milk, two-thirds cup fine dry bread crumbs, few grains salt. New Recipes For Serving Green Peas

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

WOMEN VISITORS from Europe usually go into raptures about American fruit and vegetable markets. The idea of foods being in season the year around, so that markets look like a perpetual harvest festival, gives them joy tinged with envy. It means that we can give recipes for various foods at any time during the year and be sure that they will be used.

A friend who is an epicure when it comes to green peas has sent me some interesting recipes, including many of continental origin. Petits Pois la Francaise is a simple but delicious dish. Take a well-washed iceberg lettuce, cut in quarters and put in, while wet, in a pan with seasoning and a good piece of butter. Then add shelled peas, also wet, and a handful of tiny onions. Cook gently till tender, about 30 minutes. If liked, a pinch of sugar may be added. Serve hot. Peas and shrimps combine to form a delicious chafing dish recipe. Make a cupful of rich white sauce with plenty of butter and seasoning to taste. Add about a cupful of shrimps and a cupful of previously-cooked peas. Serve hot on crackers or toast rounds.

One From Greece.

And here is a recipe for cooking green peas that comes all the way from Athens, Greece. To cook peas the Grecian way requires a tablespoon of oil, a large onion, three tomatoes and a pound of peas. Chop the onion fine and simmer gently with a tablespoon of olive oil. Peel tomatoes and add together with a large cup of water, pepper and salt to taste. Cook for a few minutes, and then add the peas, partly boiled, to the mixture. Simmer gently until the peas are quite tender.

The thrifty French housewife manages to make a nice dish from old peas that are tough. Put the peas in a stewpan with a slice of ham, minced, for each pound of peas weighed before shelling. Add a chopped lettuce leaf, a sprig of minced parsley, salt, pepper, a good lump of butter and two or three spoonsfuls of water. Cover closely and put in oven or on fire to simmer slowly for about two hours.

Another French notion is the idea of cooking peas in their pods. Wash pods and, with peas still inside, cook in boiling, salted water. After cooking, shell and the result is excellent served either hot or cold.

"Hold That Co-ed," which opens at the Ohio Thursday with John Barrymore, George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver, Joan Davis, and Jack Haley featured, is a hilarious tie-up between politics and football. Bickford Plays Dual Role.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

HOLD UP FOR A RUFF

ONE OF THE most helpful uses of the holdup play is peculiar to suit contracts. It consists of keeping an ace until the second round so that you will be on the lead at the right time to offer the suit again to strive for a third round ruff. This occurs, of course, only when there is a doubleton of the suit in the hand opposite yours—the dummy if you are declarer or your partner if you are a defender.

♠ 7 4 ♥ J 10 9 ♦ Q J 7 5 ♣ A Q 8 3	N. W. E. S.	♠ A 9 8 5 ♥ 4 3 ♦ 9 8 2 ♣ K 5 4 2
	♠ Q 10 3 ♥ A K Q 6 2 ♦ 10 3 ♣ 10 9 6

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable).

When the diamond 5 was led against South's contract of 4-Hearts, the declarer could see one spade loser and two clubs, provided he could ruff one club.

He won the first trick with the diamond K and led a club, which West won with the Q. The spade 7 was West's return. On this East played the 8. He read West's lead as a doubleton and decided to postpone capturing the trick until he could give West an opportunity to ruff. Had he gone in with the A at once, the suit would have been set up for declarer. This would have made it possible for South to draw trumps at once as the fourth spade would have provided a spot for a club discard.

When South won the spade trick and led a second club, West captured it and returned a spade. East then gave West chance to ruff a spade and the contract was set.

Tomorrow's Problem.

With the spade 4 led against South's 3-No Trump contract, how should he proceed to make his contract?

Rhododendrons and azaleas can be planted safely at this season if they can be kept well mulched and well watered. The soil where they are to go must be well drained, and without clay. Limestone and lime are harmful. Lime should never be spread on the ground where plants of this kind are being grown. Rhododendrons must be watered both summer and autumn if the season is dry, and it is particularly important to saturate the ground just before it freezes, so that there will be an abundance of moisture around the roots.

By MME. QUI VIVE

Do you lap up lip coloring with soup and salad? Do you arrive at the dinner party with the portals of your mouth an enticing vermilion only to find that, after the feast, they are as nature made them? What hasn't been consumed with the groceries has been wiped off on the napkin.

When putting the dull finish on your celestial countenance, dust a bit of powder over your lips. The powder acts as a blotter, it hangs onto the rosy coloring, sets it; it won't rub off. It's a nuisance to have to keep touching up one's portrait during the merry evening when one doesn't want to lose out on the festivities.

If the upper lip is thin and of straight outline, you can form a more graceful pattern by touching the edges with an orangewood stick that has been dug into the rouge, sketching suggestion of a Cupid's bow. A tiny double curve in the center of the lips adds piquancy to the feminie phiz.

Flattering Lip Tone.

Most important is the selection of a flattering shade of lipstick. There are three rules to keep in mind: it may darken and make richer the color of the skin but it must not put shadows upon it; it must not deaden the color of the eyes nor must it take from the glory of the hair, which it will do if locks are red or copper colored and lips a bright geranium. When a black frock is worn, cheek rouge should be light and dainty, but lips can go the limit in the use of true reds. With the white robe it is safer to select a pigment that has an orange cast.

Soft Touch.

If make-up is correct in coloring, it will give softness to the eyes; if it is an unhappy choice it will make the face appear brittle. We've all seen the drug-store blond with apple-red cheeks, black crayoned eybrows, vivid lips.

Bedizened face painting detracts from good looks. It cannot be said that it makes a girl feel beautiful. One must feel lovely to be at ease.

CZECHS GIVE UP SUDETEN AREAS AS PEACE PRICE

Prague Government Submits to Hitler, British, French Demands to Cede.

acceptance of the plan) has not yet been handed over. It cannot be handed over because discussions between the cabinet and political parties have not yet ended."

'Unconditional' Acceptance.

The government's acceptance, which came after Britain and France brought the strongest pressure against Prague, was described as "uconditional."

The cabinet's reported decision to surrender the Sudeten area rather than risk immediate war with the reich climaxed a full emergency cabinet meeting which began at 6 a. m. (1 a. m. EDT.) after President Eduard Benes and key cabinet officers had deliberated for five hours.

It was exected that an official proclamation, informing the nation of the momentous decision—reached virtually at the "zero hour"—would be issued later.

The decision was said to have been reached at 9 a. m. after the full cabinet had wearily discussed its dilemma for three full hours without a break.

Arouses Speculation.

The next great question-mark facing ancient Prague was that of how the decision would be accepted by the aroused Czech people. Fears were expressed in some circles that surrender to Hitler might not be taken with equanimity by the Czech public, large sections of which have advocated armed resistance.

Whether the Benes government will be able to weather the storm sure to be created by its action was a question that aroused the keenest speculation.

President Benes, Premier Milan Hodza and their colleagues finally made up their minds after the so-called "inner circle" of the cabinet reached a decision that the only course left open ot them was to recommend capitulation to Hitler's demands to the full cabinet.

Benes immediately summoned the parliamentary committee of 24, and this group met at 9:30 a. m. to hear the cabinet's report. The parliamentary committee was expected to approve the step taken by the government

Thereafter the government will decide upon extraordinary measures for maintenance of order while the Czech public swallows the "bitter pill" forced upon it by the Nazi reich.

The decision of the government, which was shrouded in closest secrecy, came as a terrific shock to "insiders" in Prague who became aware of it.

Up until the final moment, they hoped from some "miraculous" turn of events which might enable the final decision to favor Czechoslovakia rather than the Nazis.

Hitler Not Satisfied.

In a joint Demarche, the British and French ministers here told Benes on behalf of their governments that the Czech note offering to arbitrate Germany's Sudeten claims was not sufficient to appraise Der Fuehrer or avert a conflict.

The two ministers demanded outright acceptance of the Anglo-French partition plan within a few hours The plan calls for cession of border areas to Germany without reservations.

The conference between Benes and the ministers, Basil O. Newton of Britain and Victor Leopold Delacroix of France, lasted an hour and 15 minutes

When it was over the sleepless Czech president and his harried key ministers, some of whom were hauled from their beds held an emergency session in the presidential palace

For five hours this conference dragged on Then, at 6 a. m. the full cabinet met After three more hours their decision became known

One of the whips with which Britain and France lashed the Czechs into submission was the warning, given Benes by Newton and Delacroix, that "time presses ' This obviously was in reference to the ominous massing of Reich troops.

Duce Hints Poles, Hungarians Next.

TREVISO, Italy—(U P)—Premier Benito Mussolini declared today that the problem of all minorities —the Hungarians and Poles as well as the Sudetens—in Czechoslovakia must be settled "integrally"

The Fascist premier, who has put Italy firmly behind Adolf Hitler's demands on the Czechs, emphasized his determination also to back up the claims which Poland and Hungary are making on Prague

The Polish minority in Czechoslovakia is between 80 000 and 100,000 and the Hungarian minority is about 700,000.

Mussolini praised Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain for his efforts to avoid war.

"At this moment, Chamberlain who took the political initiative, is piloting the ship to the port of peace," he said.

HENDAYE, France—(AP)—Government dispatches reported today that Spanish militiamen had captured 17 strategic hilltops in a new offensive on the Teruel front in the Manzanera sector.

The insurgents issued a blanket denial, but the Barcelona government dispatches enumerated capture of the hills as well as of five villages.

They Whipped Czechs Into Submission

Fuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany and Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten Germans, both above, are the two men who whipped Czechoslovakia into giving the Sudeten areas to Germany. Hitler obtained a desertion of Czech allies in conversations with Premier Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain and through pressure brought to bear by Britain and France, the Czechs today bowed to the demands of the Nazis. The photograph of Hitler and Henlein was taken during a recent series of conferences between the two.

OLD FAITHFUL, OTHER GEYSERS HAYWIRE, RANGERS MYSTIFIED

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo.—(AP)—It must be the weather, say the rangers, for there's no other way of explaining why Yellowstone's geysers should go haywire.

Old Faithful, which has been erupting on train-like schedule for so long that the rangers set their watches by it, is almost a minute behind time. It spouts every 1.57 minutes now, instead of every 1.7 minutes.

Rainbow and Congress pools, normally quiet and colorful little bodies of water, suddenly have turned into spouting whirlpools. Their vicious torrents have washed away the walks which were constructed so that tourists might get a glimpse of the placid waters.

Rainbow is spouting 60 feet into the air; Congress is tossing out a water spout of almost pure mud. It has drifted over the highways and fences and has covered them with gray powder.

Ledge Geyser is erupting every hour Heretofore its spouting couldn't be predicted at all. Its neighbor. The Valentine, was as dependable as a 10-year-old work horse. Now it shoots any time.

The famed Old Whirligig has given birth to a new Little Whirligig which erputs to a height of from 10 to 12 feet every 20 seconds.

UNION SCHOOL BONDS BEATEN BY 23 VOTES

Proposed $75,900 Rural Issue Gets 60 Per Cent Majority in Special Election.

By a margin of 23 votes, the Union rural school district north of Mansfield turned down a proposed $75,900 bond issue for a new centralized school at a special election yesterday.

The vote was 272 for the bond issue and 179 against it, but the percentage of majority was only slightly over 60, while the proposal need 65 per cent to pass.

At the same time voters were turning down the bond issue, the federal government approved a PWA grant for $62,100 to supplement the proposed bond issue for the construction of a $138,000 high school and elementary building.

Notice of approval of the grant was received this morning, a few hours after the election results showed the bond issue had been defeated while automatically cancelled the federal grant.

The proposed school would serve high school pupils in Franklin and Weller townships and a part of the grade pupils.

Weller Rejects Plan.

Franklin township, where the new school was to be erected, gave the plan a 66 per cent majority, but in Weller township the vote dropped to 52.7 per cent. A shift of 23 votes in favor of the proposal would have given it the needed 65 per cent majority.

Franklin township favored the program by a vote of 158 to 77, while the vote in Weller township was 114 for and 102 against the bond issue.

With the PWA funds allocated, Supt. V. B. Moffett of Union school and members of the school board indicated they might submit the bond issue again this fall, possibly at the Nov. 8 election.

Consent of the state tax commission for the election must be obtained, however, and the board must have the assurance that the PWA money will still be available if the bond issue passes, Supt. Moffett said.

He blamed the defeat of the proposal on the brevity of the campaign, which was not started until mid-August, after the board received tentative approval of the FWA grant

Ex-Ohio Lawmakers In Grand Jury's 'Mystery Probe'

JURORS CHECK STATE FUNDS, HOTEL BILLS

Herner, Schweller, Chairmen of Finance Committees in 1935-36 Involved.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Surrounded by an air of mystery, 15 witnesses were summoned today before a grand jury investigating expenses of former Ohio Legislators Julian H. Schweller and William H. Herner, the latter seeking election to his fifth senate term on the Democratic ticket.

Franklin County Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett, who issued subpoenas for the witnesses late yesterday, kept a tight-lipped silence over details of the inquiry, declining to name the person whose complaint he said started a preliminary investigation several weeks ago.

The jury sought from witnesses information on hotel accounts and records of state funds received through claims by Herner and Schweller while both were legislators in 1935-36.

During that time Herner was chairman of the senate finance committee and Schweller, a Democrat who served four terms as representative, headed the house finance committee.

Declines Comment.

Herner at his home in Norwalk declined to comment "until I learn what the investigation is all about." Schweller was not available for comment at his home in Fort Jennings, Putnam county.

State Finance Director M. Ray Allison was directed to produce records of meetings of the emergency board, board of control and sundry claims board during 1935-36 when both former solons received allowances for attending sessions as board members.

Others asked to produce records included State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, Senate Clerk Dwight L. Matchett and House Clerk Fred P. Elsas. Managers of three Columbus hotels also were to produce accounts.

Indicted in 1933 on a charge of soliciting a $1,500 bribe in connection with his vote on a measure to set up a state board of embalmers and funeral directors, Herner won a directed verdict of acquittal from Common Pleas Judge Dana F. Reynolds in a 1934 trial.

Herner was elected to the senate for a two-year term in 1913 and returned in 1931. He served through 1936, representing Erie, Fulton, Hancock, Henry, Huron, Ottawa, Putnam, Sandusky and Wood counties. Schweller served as Putnam county representative from 1929 through 1936.

Ohio's Youngest Lifer Says Life In Prison 'Great'

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Fifteen-year-old Lindberg Heist, the youngest prisoner in Ohio penitentiary, has been in prison for six weeks and he thinks prison life is great in comparison with his previous existence in Cincinnati.

"I like it," he said without hesitation today in the first interview since he was received at the prison on Aug. 15, to serve a life sentence for the brutal lust-murder of six-year-old Shirley Ann Woodburn.

"They treat me swell," the former Cincinnati newsboy continued. "Lots better than most people did at home. And the food's swell, too."

His cell floor was littered with pieces from a partly dismantled radio receiving set, additional radio parts and radio magazines. A shelf held more radio parts, his pipe—he smokes two packs of tobacco a week—a New Testament and German language and radio textbooks.

HELD TO JURY

Transients Bound Over On Breaking, Entering Charge.

Two middle-aged transients were held to the county grand jury today under bonds of $1,500 on charges of breaking and entering.

The men who gave the names of Robert Hood and Ben Grubb, no address, pleaded guilty when arraigned in municipal court this morning before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch.

The men are accused of entering the Fred Miller cafe, at First avenue and Orange street, early Monday and robbing a music machine of $5 in change. They were captured in a nearby alley by police as they were leaving the cafe.

THUGS CARRY OFF SAFE

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Thieves who forced the rear door of the Caito Bros. Produce company last night escaped with a safe containing $1,800 in cash and checks, police reported today.

Up and Down THE STREET

A lot of the "feminine touch" will be missing this year at West Fifth street school where the enrollment shows a loss of 42 girls since last spring. At the same time, the Western avenue school reported a gain of 20 girls since last year. Supt. W. L. Miller of city schools attributed the enrollment changes to population shifts, with families with girls in school doing the most moving.

Leo Yuncker has a new hat trick. It's a darb, too, but so far the only thing that Leo has found wrong with it is that he can't find a "stooge." The trick is to fire a shotgun into a hat—yes, without damaging the hat. Here's how: He puts a regular shell into a shotgun, a repeater, takes off the barrel and fires. The shot flies without force into the hat held directly in front of the weapon.

FLOOD MENACES FOUR STATES

New England Storms Cause Ten Deaths, Train Wrecks; Dams Threatened.

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON—Streams in New England, swollen by a four-day storm which caused ten deaths, two train derailments and a number of injuries, presented today a new flood menace in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Connecticut.

In Rhode Island, state officials moved to guard the Blackstone and Woonasquatucket valleys against the possibility of collapsing dams as the Blackstone river flowed three feet above normal and the Woonasquatucket was two feet above ordinary flow level.

Lowlanders in these valleys prepared to move out, while in Massachusetts, resident of Barre Plains near the rising Ware river already had evacuated homes flooded by water at a depth of six feet.

Manufacturing plants in two Massachusetts communities were closed. One hundred workers were made idle in Gardner when water flooded five factories. Southbridge plants closed with engine rooms under water.

Connecticut was confronted with the worst flood conditions since March of 1936.

Storm damage, already unofficially estimated in hundreds of thousands of dollars, mounted steadily.

Squirrel Season Near, Have You Got License, Tag?

With the opening of squirrel season just five days away, hunters of Richland county today were warned by C. I. Kimmel, county game warden, to have both their license and identification tag with with them when hunting.

Hunters must carry their license with them, and must have the identification tag fastened on their backs in plain sight, Kimmel said. Anyone failing to comply with this ruling is liable to a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $50, Kimmel warned.

The opening day of squirrel season is Sept. 25, but because this day falls on Sunday, the season will not officially open until Monday. Anyone found hunting on Sunday will be subject to fine, according to Kimmel.

Pastatis declined to remain in a hospital, explaining he was away behind in his farm chores.

'MAN'S BEST FRIEND' CAN TAKE BOW, IT'S 'NATIONAL DOG WEEK'

Dogs—from the smallest Pekinese to the Great Dane—come into their own this week in Mansfield and throughout the nation.

It's National Dog week, and dog lovers everywhere are calling attion to the qualities of "man's best friend."

Windshield stickers and window placards, eulogizing dogs, have been distributed in the city by the Angell Refuge society which is sponsoring the movement in Mansfield.

While no special observance will be held here, members of the society are conducting a widespread campaign to acquaint Mansfielders with the value of a dog as a friend or helper around the home.

Activities are in charge of Atty. C. H. Workman who organized the Angell Refuge society.

Workman pointed out that National Dog week has a seven-point purpose:

1. To provide a good home for every dog; 2. to eliminate stray dogs from streets; 3. to disseminate the actual truth about rabies; 4. to educate dog owners in their obligations both to their dogs and to the public generally; 5. to teach kindness and consideration by children and adults towards dogs and animals in general; 6. to emphasize the use of the dog as home protector, faithful companion, and useful servant of mankind; 7. to secure fair and just laws for dogs and their owners, but to respect the rights of those who do not own dogs.

GOES TO PRISON

Barbara Bird, Mother-to-Be, Gets 4-Year Sentence.

CLEVELAND— (INS) — Barbara Bird, 20-year-old expectant mother and wife of the convicted robber, Charles Bird, was taken to the federal detention farm at Milan, Mich., today to start a four-year term.

Changing her mind a few hours after pleading not guilty, Mrs. Bird late yesterday pleaded guilty before Federal Judge Paul Jones to charges of being an accessory in the series of bank robberies blamed on the Bird gang and of aiding the gang in its sensational escape from county jail a year ago.

Judge Jones immediately sentenced the girl to three years for aiding in the jail break and to four years for being an accessory after the fact in the bank holdups. The three years of the first sentence and the first three years of the second will run concurrently.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ALL COUNTY'S SUB-DIVISIONS IN 'SAME BOAT'

Budget Commission Points Out Estimates Too High for Available Revenue.

The city of Mansfield must whittle $55,592 off its operating budget request for 1939 to conform to available income for the year, the county budget commission announced today.

Mansfield asked $303,032 for operating costs for the year, and only $247,440 will be available from all sources, the commission said in returning the request to council for approval.

Most of the county's 41 cities, villages, townships and school districts set their budget estimates too high and received the "bad news" from the budget commission which had returned all of the budget requests today to the subdivisions.

Only 3 Estimates Okayed.

Only Plymouth, Lexington and Butler villages will get all they asked for in the 1939 distribution of tax receipts, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said.

Plymouth requested $3,973; Butler, $3,059, and Lexington, $3,286.

Mansfield schools fared better than the city, receiving $543,869 after requesting $561,097, a reduction of $17,237.

Shelby schools, which asked for $108,667, wil have all but $321 of it available. The city of Shelby was cut $11,250, from $59,380 to $48,130.

Madison township trustees requested $14,913 and will receive $12,665, while the Madison schools will get $65,620 after requesting $76,450.

Street Repairs Not Included.

Wolfe, a member of the budget commission, explained that huge cuts in the Shiloh and Lucas operating estimates were the result of attempts to include street repair programs in the operating budgets. Gasoline tax and automobile license fees, and not county tax funds, must be used for street building and maintenance. Wolfe said.

Shiloh asked for $3,566 and will receive $1,318. Lucas requested $2,729 and will have $1,306 available.

Bellville will vote on a proposed two-mill operating levy at the November election which, if it passes, is expected to make up a difference of $1,272 between the budget request and the amount of funds available for the year.

County real estate and personal tax receipts, liquor license fees and sales tax collections are the sources of income for cities, villages and townships. In addition to the county tax funds, school districts receive school foundation money from the state.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Hitler Persecution Cry a Thin Shield for Grab at Some Rich Territory

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The practical truth of Hitler's invasion of Czechoslovakia, which began three years ago, is this:—Hitler is not interested in the Sudeten Germans but in the territory which they inhabit. If his heart were wrung by any sufferings of expatriated and captive Germans his first concern would be the tortured captives in that part of old Austria which now lies in northern Italy. These people have suffered real persecution.

If Hitler's interest were humane and not territorial he would have encouraged the Sudetens to leave Czechoslovakia and make their homes in Germany. Such a mass emigration would involve some loss through the forced sale of possessions, but the loss would not be comparable to that suffered by the minorities in the reich and who are forced to leave all their possessions behind when they find opportunity to flee. In the matter of the persecution of minorities Hitler has nothing to learn. He wrote the book.

* * *

Konrad Henlein was assigned to promote treason in Czechoslovakia and has done a thorough, practical, cold-blooded job. He made frequent trips into Germany to report progress and receive further instructions.

And the German propaganda department, by a clumsy error, sent a memorandum to all the foreign press correspondents at the Olympic games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen in the winter of 1936 urging them to take photographs of Henlein sitting with Hitler and otherwise to "make propaganda" for the program of treason against a land whose athletes at that very moment were performing on the ice before Hitler and their traitor fellow-countryman.

This memorandum was intended only for German correspondents, but a dumkopf in the press department muffed his instructions and called upon Americans and others in the press gallery to abet a treacherous conspiracy, promoted under the white banner of international sport. Hitler and Henlein even then were aiming guns at the hearts of the Olympic boys and girls from Czechoslovakia.

* * *

If any minority in Germany had undertaken to do as Henlein has done in Czechoslovakia, Hitler would have slaughtered both leaders and followers without pretense of a trial. Czechoslovakia, however, patiently endured Henlein's back-stabbing. Hitler has filled graves and torture camps with minorities whose dissent was merely passive. Henlein, on the other hand, has distributed weapons and drilled troops to await a day when Hitler would order them to betray their country to him.

The Sudetens never have been persecuted in the Hitlerian sense of the word, and, moreover, if the persecution of members of his blood were Hitler's trouble he would have gone to the rescue of the Austrians in Italy long before this. But, for the time being at least, they have been yielded to their captors under Hitler's "perpetual promise" to Mussolini.

It is purely a business arrangement. He has sold those "blood brothers" into slavery for a price.

* * *

The Germans organized and carried out the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss in Austria, but met unexpected resistance and backed off to drench the country with propaganda by air and press until finally the Austrians were too weak to resist. Dr. Schuschnigg, the head of the legal Austrian government, is now a prisoner, awaiting the constitution of a "special court." This court will find him guilty of treason against the invader—a new crime.

The Nazis are spreading out to absorb and dominate Europe toward the east, and the Sudeten conquest simply happens to be the next step in the plan. There are areas in Poland with an equal demand on Hitler's humane sympathies. But, taking things in order as they come, he is engaged now in conquering a strong natural line of military defense and seizing the rich territory just beyond it by indirect methods.

* * *

The Sudeten area never was a part of Germany and contains many inhabitants whose fate as a minority in Hitler's hands has been written in blood on every page of Nazi history. This same fate could well await American minorities in every area containing a settlement of Nazis, including, no doubt, sections of New York City, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Hoboken.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—If you are a movie-struck parent and want to get your own bright little tottie into the flickers, you ought to come to Hollywood first—alone—and take a look around.

You ought to be on hand around a casting office some day when there's a call for children, and see for yourself the swarms of movie mammas and their offspring you and your prodigy will have to buck and fight for even a look at the role of the 19th orphan in the orphange scene.

You ought to see for yourself! how the mammas, as they wait, glare sweetly at each other and primp their pretty pets—and how phoney so many of the kids themselves, who ought to be making backyard sand-castles or taking their naps, look with their transparently rehearsed "cutenesses," their frequently artificial curls, and their alleged talents for dancing and singing or reciting pieces.

And then, if you still think Hollywood's a good idea for your child and insist on bringing it out, look before you leap into any of the numerous child talent schools in town. They are so easily investigated that there's little excuse for anyone's being taken in.

Dennis O'Keefe, the erstwhile Bud Flanagan of the extra ranks, made more money at golf his first year in pictures than he did at acting.

O'Keefe, son of a famous vaudevillian, was salesman for a local plumbing concern when he called on a pal who happened to be an assistant casting director. He'd had some experience in vaudeville and didn't care for plumbing, so he grabbed at the chance of five days' work with Olive Borden in a 1930 flicker. For nearly a year afterward he didn't act again, but he was a crack golfer, much sought for betting foursomes.

He was discovered last year through a bit in "Rhythm on the Range" and soon he had an M-G-M contract and a lead spot in "Bad Man of Brimstone." In the intervening years he had done everything one can do about a studio—played extra, bits, swept out stages, propped and played golf.

Since "Brimstone" he's been so busy in pictures he hasn't had time for the links. But the other day he took on two pals. At the first tee it sounded, he says, like an alibi contest.

I've got a bad back—don't think I can do much," said the first.

"A bee stung my right arm—I can't play," said the second.

"Haven't played in a year," said O'Keefe. "This is going to be murder."

The scores: No. 1, 80; No. 2, 70; O'Keefe 75!

It pains me to report that Freddie Bartholomew's soap box racer, now in course of construction, has met a serious obstacle.

For weeks Freddie's entire allowance of $1 has gone on the vehicle. With time off from "Listen Darling," he had great hopes of finishing the contraption and giving it a trial run. All it needs is wheels, but Freddie is without funds—and will take at least a month to accumulate the required amount.

Aunt Cissie, meanwhile, standing upon her rights and their agreement, is unyielding — figuring no doubt that any legal delay to the try-out is justifiable as postponing a catastrophe.

New Semi-Pro Football Team Formed, Opens Sunday

Four Veterans In Tiger Lineup

Nagle Only Murphyman to Start Against Massillon Saturday Who Saw Service Last Season.

IT WILL BE a new experience for the Tygers Saturday when they run up against what is considered one of the greatest of all recent Massillon high school football teams at Stadium field.

Capt. Rich Nagle is the only member of the 1938 edition of the Tygers who ever appeared in the lineup against the defending state champions, and he saw service only in a substitute role at center last fall.

None of the other Tygers on the present squad as much as got into the lineup in that 6 to 6 tie game last season.

Massillon on the other hand, will go into Saturday's tiff at Stadium field with a lineup that includes four veterans of the once-defeated, once-tied 1937 club.

Snyder Heads List.

Heading the quartet of survivors is Capt. Red Snyder, the only senior in the backfield. This is Shyder's third season with the Tygers. He blocked throughout the 1936 season and blocked until the Canton game last year when he gave a fine demonstration of ball carrying in the surprise performance of the year.

Snyder does the fullbacking and is one of the main cogs in the defensive setup.

Lynn Houston, the right guard, is one of the mainstays of the line A senior, he never played or saw a game of football until last year. He developed rapidly during the 1937 season.

Earl Martin, the junior center who saw service against Mansfield last year, has two distinctions. He is the tallest member of the squad, six feet, three inches, and has the largest feet, size 13. He played every game at center as a sophomore last year and promises to develop into one of the best pivot men in Massillon history

The other holdover certain to start Saturday is Fred Toles, the left end, who scored two of the touchdowns against McKeesport. Tried at several positions last year, Toles, a senior, never turned loose his stuff until the closing game against Canton when he did a good job on left end. Toles is the fastest member of the squad and played as a halfback against Mansfield in 1937

Hold Down Posts

Others who will start in the Massillon lineup are Horace Gillom, a lanky sophomore end; Bill McMichael, senior tackle who saw much service at a guard last season; Jim Russell, another sophomore guard; Red Henderson, sophomore guard, and Snyder's partners in the backfield, Bill Zimmerman, blocking half; Ray Getz, sophomore, and George Slusser, Massillon's star in the opener.

Another player who saw service against Mansfield last fall but is not a regular is Lucius, a lineman.

Slim Ashland College Squad Must Do Without Freshmen

(By Associated Press)

ASHLAND college, where lean times have dealt gridiron prospects an all but lethal blow, must carry on with a football squad that already approaches the irreducible minimum.

Although only 14 candidates for the team now are available to Coach Tony Lonero, Ashland's plea to Ohio conference officials to lift the ban on freshmen was denied yesterday

Conference President Royal Martin, Otterbein athletic director, announced the circuit's eligibility committee rejected Ashland's plea but urged the school to remain in the grid scramble anyway

Ashland has a scheduled season's opener against Heidelberg Friday, but school officials did not indicate what response, if any, they would make to the committee's suggestion. The committee proposed that, as a last resort, Ashland withdraw from the conference only temporarily.

Dr. Clarence Spears, former University of Wisconsin mentor, "turned on the heat" yesterday and directed his University of Toledo Rockets in a hard scrimmage drill. Toledo meets West Liberty State Teachers college of West Virginia Saturday.

Ohio university's Bobcats, who clash with the University of Illinois Saturday at Champaign, Ill., have been put through a series of fast breaking shift plays by Coach Don Peden who discarded a short punt formation for a new groundwork from which to strike.

The Bobcats are working in swing time Bandmaster Curtis Jannsen popped up with a six-piece band which churns up rhythm daily on the sidelines as the gridders practice Peden says the lively tempo helps the Cats to shift smoothly.

Alfred Holbrook, sharpening an attack for Saturday's clash with Morehead of Kentucky, has had two lineup changes Coach Mendell Beatty is using Zeno Smith of Germantown at center and Ben Rhodes of Portsmouth at left guard.

Hard scrimmage has been the fare for Bluffton's Warriors in preparation for their opener Saturday with Hillsdale college at Hillsdale, Mich.

Madison Points for New London Wildcats, Seeks Revenge for One-Sided Trouncings

MADISON high's football schedule includes a number of tough games, but probably the Rams' followers would rather see Coach Al Fendrick's men win the one on the docket with New London Friday night than any other.

Mansfield football-goers have never forgotten the whippings absorbed by the Rams of a few years ago, and there will be a big celebration at the suburban school Friday if the defenders of the Mid-State league title triumph.

Back in 1933, New London trimmed an undefeated Madison team, 49 to 0, in a post-season game. It was the worst defeat ever suffered by a Madison club coached by Fendrick.

The next year the Wildcats trounced Madison, 32 to 14, in a spectacular game in which touchdowns were scored on the first two kickoffs.

The two schools have never met on the gridiron since then, and it will be interesting to see what develops Friday.

The Rams opened their season with an impressive 60 to 12 victory over Sunbury last week and New London bowed to Lorain Reserves, and, on the records, Madison should win.

But Fendrick and the Madison fans are not taking anything for granted. They'll wait and see what happens before celebrating.

It is unfortunate that the Wildcats lost the services of their crack halfback, Bobby Thomas, who suffered a concussion of the brain in the opener last week, but they will be primed for the tilt, and a good, old-fashioned duel should result.

Although victorious by a one-sided margin in their inaugural, Fendrick is driving the Rams hard in workouts this week. In addition to seeking more protection for the passers, Fendrick is stressing an improvement in tackling.

There is also a possibility that several changes will be made in the lineup, according to the coach. Russell Price is being worked in Louis Danison's guard post and Chuck Backensto is getting a lot of attention at the blocking half position held down by Bob Matthes in the opener.

Fendrick is also teaching the club new plays from different formations in this week's drills.

Adams' 590 High in First Night of Bowling.

Led by Adams' 590, the Welders, featuring a 926 games, rolled a 2485 total and scored three victories over the Frame club to feature the opening night of bowling in the Shelby Cycle league at the Meder alleys last night.

The Office team took two games from the Machinists, led by Sweet's 587, and Osborn, with a 578, led the All-Stars to a 2232 total and a sweep over the Pressroom.

PORTSMOUTH CLINCHES MID-ATLANTIC PLAYOFF

AKRON—(U P)—The Portsmouth Red Birds today had proved their class as pennant winners during the regular Mid-Atlantic league season by their annexation of the playoff championship.

The Red Birds smashed four home runs in the seventh and deciding playoff game last night to nose out the Akron Yankees, 7-6. Relief Pitcher Maher choked off an Akron rally in the ninth inning when he struck out Frank Silvanic and Herb White popped out on an infield fly with the tying run on second base.

Double Plays Aid Galehouse

Kroner Figures in Three as Tribe Beats Nats.

CLEVELAND — (U P) — Pitcher Denny Galehouse and infielder Johnny Kroner, two ball players who have been warming the bench of the Cleveland Indians most of the season, today furnished the spark that made the Tribe look like a contending club again in the American league.

The prize was only second place in the final standings and some extra cash but until Galehouse and Kroner collaborated in the field Tuesday to whip Washington, 9-1, the Indians had looked like a second division team for the past 10 days.

Galehouse scattered nine Washington safeties, aided in no small measure by four double plays by the Tribe infield. Kroner, filling in at second base for Hale, figured in three of the twin killings.

For their own part, the Vittmen put 10 hits and four walks to good use. Bruce Campbell knocked in three runs with a double and a long fly. Hal Trosky collected three singles Although the Indians displayed a turn for the better, they lost ground to second-place Boston which beat St. Louis twice. The Red Sox lead by one full game.

Smothers Foe

Patty Berg.

Patty Wins 10 Straight Holes to Win Opener.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The prize ring had its "killers"—now women's golf has one in harmless looking Patty Berg of Minneapolis.

Miss Berg, with her red hair and freckled face, and just 20 years old, looks tame enough until she starts swinging her clubs. Then she is ruthless. In a mighty blast of just 42 shots at Westmoreland Country club yesterday, Patty smothered Mrs. Myron Davy of Washington, D. C., 10 and 8, in as crushing a defeat as any women's national tournament has ever produced. She won ten straight holes.

That overwhelming victory overshadowed everything in the first round flight, including the defeat of the six time former champion, Glenna Collett Vare. It overshadowed the performance of Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page of Chapel Hill, N. C., the defending champion in eliminating the Canadian titleholder, Mrs. Eric Phillips of Lambton Mills, Ont. Mrs. Vare was swept to the sidelines by 18-year-old Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga.

Eva Shorb of Massillon, O., who defeated Mrs. R. E. Winger of Fort Worth, Tex., one up in 19 holes yesterday, faced Rena Nelson of Chicago this morning.

Meets Detroit In Inaugural

Brownie Corcoran to Coach Eleven to Include Many Former Mansfield High School Stars.

SEMI-PROFESSIONAL football entertainment in the city this season will be provided by a team to be sponsored by the Kallmerten & Baer company.

This was revealed today in a joint announcement made by Johnny Villella, business manager of the club, and Ted Ganyard, secretary-treasurer.

Served With Pros.

Villella, who served as an official of the Mansfield Pros last fall, was business manager of the disbanded Mansfield Bronchos, a semi-pro eleven organized earlier in the season The Bronchoes disbanded this week.

Brownie Corcoran, widely-known in Mansfield athletic circles, will manage the club, Villella said. A former Mt. Vernon high school star, Corcoran formerly coached the Mansfield bantamweight team.

This year marks Corcoran's debut as coach of semi-pro football, but he proved himself to be a capable strategist in his other coaching assignments, and he is expected to develop a strong Kallmerten & Baer team

The Kallmerten & Baer gridsters have picked on anything but an easy assignment for their opener with the Detroit, Mich., Pi Rho Phi eleven next Sunday at League park.

Semi-pro football followers will remember the Detroiters as the team which defeated the Mansfield Pros, 3 to 0, last season. Villella has been notified that virtually the same lineup team will be back this year

Won Title In '36.

The Pi Rho Phi team won the Michigan State semi-pro championship last two years ago, and was among the outstanding clubs in Michigan last season with seven victories.

Villella said today that a number of other strong clubs will be brought to League park for games The schedule, however, has not been completed.

A number of former Mansfield high school stars will appear in the lineup of the Kallmerten & Baer team.

Weather Man Holds Key to Pennant Door

Postponements Big Help to Pirate Hopes.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The question before the house today is: What will the Phils, Dodgers, Cardinals and weather man do to lessen or enhance the pennant prospects of the three National league contenders — the Pirates, Cubs and Reds?

Don't overlook that weather man. He may yet prove the deciding factor in this dizzy pennant scramble. The situation in a nutshell is this:

The Pirates have four games left to play with the Dodgers, seven with the Reds and three with the Cubs.

Three With Bucs.

The Cubs have four to play with the Phillies, six with the Cardinals and three with the Pirates.

The Reds have three left with the Giants, seven with the Pirates and three with the Cardinals.

The Pirates have lost four fewer games than the Cubs and any games rained out should be a corresponding boon to the Pittsburgh entry and a corresponding blow to the Chicagoans.

All three contenders dread meeting the second division outfits who are going nowhere and therefore are under no strain while the leaders are naturally tightened up. Under such conditions, the trailing teams may make life miserable for their more elite brethren.

The rainstorms that washed out every National league game yesterday for the second successive day bring in another important factor—the doubleheader with their attendant strain on pitching staffs.

Today and tomorrow the Pirates have four games scheduled with the Dodgers; the Reds have three on tap with the Giants and the Cubs four with the Phillies These doubleheaders will be more of a strain on the Cubs than they will on the Reds or the Pirates, for the Cubs have only two dependable pitchers—Lee and Bryant.

The pennant race may not be decided until the very last day of the season. On that day the Reds play the Pirates and the pennant might hinge on that one game.

Cuemen Meet News Week from Sunday

A correction of a schedule error by Manager John Stoner today revealed that the Rex Billiards will play the Keller News in Norwalk Sunday, Oct. 1, instead of next Sunday The game at Norwalk will close the Billiards' season.

The Billiards are without a game Sunday, but would like to schedule a road tilt. Stoner would prefer a game with either Hayesville or Lexington. Stoner may be reached at Dover 1965 or 268 Park avenue east.

SCHOOL BONDS WIN WITH 68.5 PCT. MAJORITY

$550,000 Issue Carries in 4 of 6 Wards; Building Program Assured.

all our school children as soon as the facilities can be provided, as well as the rehabilitation of the elementary buildings and the shop addition at Senior high school.

Mansfield citizens have taken advantage of the opportunity to save themselves $450,000 through the aid of a direct government grant.

We wish to thank the voters for their support in this campaign, the Parent-Teacher associations in all sections of the city, The Mansfield News-Journal, and all other organizations and individuals who gave unstintingly of their time in behalf of the bond issue."

(Signed)

H. W. ARLIN, President.
DR. J. S. HATTERY.
H. A. BRUCE.
W. C. MEAD.
A. H. FANKHAUSER.

So happy over the outcome of the election that she was "breathless," Mrs. F D. Boals, president of the Mansfield council of Parent-Teacher associations, said passage of the bond issue has "not only proven Mansfield progressive" but showed that citizens have "the welfare of our children at heart."

Headed Vote Drive.

Mrs. Boals headed the vigorous P. T. A. campaign to "get out the vote" which was a major factor in the favorable decision at the polls. Her organization, organized and active in every ward in the city was also materially responsible for the registration and transfer of more than 2,000 voters who had let their right of franchise lapse.

On behalf of her organization, Mrs. Boals issued the following statement:

"We are more than pleased with the results of the election. In accepting this new junior high school as a gift from the government, and in matching it with one ourselves, we have not only proven Mansfield progressive but we have shown that we still have the welfare of our children at heart.

"We sincerely hope this project will act as a forerunner to a greater school building program in our city."

(Signed)

MRS F. D. BOALS.

A total of 9,954 persons went to the polls yesterday, and 6,816 of them voted for the bond issue, while 3,138 opposed it.

Heavy Late Vote.

The heavy vote was a distinct surprise to election officials and observers. The consensus of opinion had been that not more than 6,000 persons would vote, despite the fact that the question was one of unusual public interest. A News-Journal survey, covering nearly half of the city's precincts in a morning test of the voting trend—a method that has proved highly accurate in the past—showed a probable 6,000 votes would be cast.

But in the afternoon, Mansfielders went to the polls in entirely unexpected droves.

The total vote was heavier—by 832 ballots—than on the same issue in the August primaries, when the school bond question obtained a majority of 60 per cent, but fell short of the required 65.

The total vote was 9,122 in August as compared with 9,954 yesterday.

The affirmative vote yesterday of 6,816 was 1,270 more than the 5,546 of last August.

The negative vote was lower—3,138 yesterday, and 3,576 in August.

Given Big Lead.

Three wards, the First, Second and Third, gave the bonds commanding majorities of better than 65 per cent, and assured their passage, as did the three precincts in Madison township outside the city that are in the Mansfield school district.

They also voted favorably for the issue in the August primaries but not by quite as sizeable a margin. The vote percentages in favor of the bonds in these four districts were:

First ward, 73.2 per cent; Second ward, 84.6, Third ward, 75.2; Madison district, 73 per cent.

The principal opposition again came from the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth wards which took a leading hand in sidetracking the proposition in the August balloting. The Fourth ward, however, gave the bonds a majority as it did in August but lacked by more than five per cent the necessary 65.

Percentages in these three wards were: Fourth, 59.7; Fifth, 46.9, and Sixth, 49 per cent.

The building program gained supporters in every section of the city since the August election as evidenced by a comparison of the Fifth ward balloting which showed a 40 per cent vote for the plan last month and 46 per cent yesterday.

Only one ward, the Second, gave the issue a 65 per cent or better advantage in August.

Second Sets Pace.

Yesterday the Second again set the pace, handing the bonds a better than 5 to 1 vote. The total was: Yes, 1,167; No, 212.

The Third ward was next in line yesterday with a 3 to 1 advantage, casting 4,979 votes for the issue to 1,545 negative votes. The percentage was nearly the same in the First where the 'For' vote was 2,046 to 750 'No's.'

While 44 of the 53 precincts in the school district gave the bonds majorities ranging from bare one or two vote advantages to 90 per cent, it remained for precinct H of the Third ward and precinct L of the Second to show the way.

In the former, the vote was 198 for and 23 against while in 2-D the score was 211 for and 25 against.

With only one issue on the ballot, the counting of votes was unusually fast with complete unofficial returns available at 8 p. m. despite the fact that the total vote was heavier than in the recent primary.

The first precinct report was received by The News-Journal at 6:40 p. m. 10 minutes after the polls closed. It came from 6-I but proved no indication of how the election would eventually end The vote there was 64 for and 58 against.

is required to be completed by Jan 1, 1940.

The bonds must be advertised for three weeks and the building contract requests for four weeks before bids can be opened and contracts awarded, Dr John H. Bristor, board clerk, said today.

Supt. W. L Miller said arrangements would be made to provide classrooms as near as possible to homes of the John Simpson pupils while the Simpson building is being razed to make way for the new structure.

Immediately after final results of the election were determined last night, Dr. Bristor notified the PWA offices at Columbus and Chicago that the bond issue had passed, so that the government funds would be held for Mansfield schools

The board of education also sent a telegram to U. S. Senator Robert Bulkley at Washington, telling him of the bond issue victory. He has followed the building program since it was set up last spring, and has kept the board informed as to the action of PWA officials at Washington regarding the Mansfield grant.

CURLEY WINNER

Ex-Governor of Massachusetts Victor In Come-Back.

BOSTON —(INS)— Former Governor James M. Curley, veteran of many political wars, staged a successful comeback today, winning the Democratic gubernatorial nomination by approximately 40,000 votes from the incumbent, Gov. Charles F. Hurley, and two other opponents.

Leverett Saltonstall, ex-speaker of the Bay state house, swamped his opposition to grab the Republican endorsement and become Curley's opponent in November.

HOSPITAL QUARTET SUCCESS

BOSTON TRAINS JUNIOR POLICE

1,400 Boys Instructed Not to Be Afraid of Police But to Help Them.

(By United Press)

BOSTON — Fourteen hundred boys are enrolled in the Boston Junior Police corps, sponsored by Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty.

Fifteen patrolmen are assigned as mentors of the junior force. They will instruct the boys in first aid, life saving, drill work and other phases of police work.

The corps is supervised by Lieut. William J. Carey, who for seven years was attached to the district attorney's office handling juvenile and domestic relation cases.

"We want to teach these youngsters the real honest-to-goodness advantages that a city boy has. We are teaching them not to be afraid of policement, but rather to bring their troubles to the policeman," Carey explained.

"We have no regular police work for the boys to do. We teach them what a policeman has to do All phases of police work are explained and demonstrated to them. The boys are not 'stool pigeons.' We don't allow them to gossip.

"We are instructing the boys in law and order so that they may become better citizens."

Many girl applicants have been notified that they can not be admitted to membership. But Commissioner Timilty, founder of the corps, has indicated that a separate corps for girls may be formed later.

Boys from 12 to 16 years old are eligible to join, and there are no dues of requirements of any kind.

DEDICATES NEW SEMINARY NEAR HERE THURSDAY

Bishop Alter to Officiate at Ceremonies at Mission House Addition.

A recently completed addition to the Sacred Heart seminary on route 39, seven miles north of Mansfield, will be dedicated at 10 a. m. tomorrow by the Most Rev. Karl J. Alter, D.D., bishop of the Catholic diocese of Toledo.

Coming here for the services will be a large number of the diocesan clergy, members of various religious orders, representatives of the archdiocese of Cincinnati, and dioceses of Cleveland and Columbus, as well as lay friends of the seminary.

Following the dedication proper, Bishop Alter will say a low mass during the course of which he will confer minor orders upon three seminarians, the first event of its kind in the annals of the institution. The bishop also will preach. The traditional Gregorian chant and other musical selections will be presented by the seminary choir under the direction of the Rev. Joseph Kirscht, M.S.C.

Designed by Walter Thies, Dayton architect, and erected by Simon Small & Sons, Mansfield contractors, the structures to be dedicated on this occasion are the completed main unit of the seminary and the basement of the chapel wing.

Building 200 Feet Long.

They are both of brick and reinforced concrete construction, with trimmings of Indiana limestone. The main building is 200 feet long and 39 feet wide, comprising a basement and three stories. It contains 52 private rooms for the faculty, students and lay brothers as well as lecture halls, library, recreation facilities, reception room, kitchen and bakery.

Directly opposite the main entrance and extending to the rear is the chapel wing. Only the basement has been constructed of this section.

Sacred Heart seminary is the major house of studies for the American district, Society of the Missionaries of the Sacred Heart. The faculty is composed of the following members of that congregation: The Very Rev. Joseph Janssen, M. S. C., superior; the Revs. Joseph Richter, M. S. C.; Clement Geppert, M. S. C.; Joseph Schneider, M. S. C.; Paul Stimmler, M. S. C.; Joseph Kirscht, M. S. C.; Ernest Algermissen, M. S. C., Ph. D., and Berthold Schuh, M. S. C.

Two more members are about to complete special studies for their doctorate degrees in Rome and are expected to join the staff shortly. The student body numbers 25, six lay brothers labor in the workshops, farm and garden, and three missionary sisters of the Sacred Heart take care of the kitchen and laundry work.

Through one year of novitiate, two years of philosophy, and four years of theology, the young aspirants are trained here for the priestly and missionary work of the society. After ordination they may be assigned either to home missionary activities as carried on from Sacred Heart monasteries at Aurora, Ill., Sparta, Wis., and Reading, Pa., or to one of the 14 foreign mission districts that have been confided to the care of the society.

BARGE TRAFFIC ON RIVER RISES

Mississippi Channel 9 Feet Deep to Be Maintained as Result of Project.

(By United Press)

ST. LOUIS — The project for maintaining a 9-foot channel on the upper Mississippi river from St. Louis to Minneapolis, Minn., virtually will be completed by the end of 1938, according to Major-Gen. Julian L. Schley, chief of the U. S. Army Engineers.

Schley pointed out that by the end of the year all but one of the 26 dams in the upper Mississippi system will be in operation. He explained that the dam at Clarksville, Mo., will not be finished for another year, but its absence will not affect navigation on the river.

Schley, returning from an inspection of the upper Mississippi and Missouri rivers, said improvement in the waterways system has resulted in a substantial increase in barge traffic.

He predicted that the Missouri river channel from St Louis to Omaha, Neb. will be completed by 1940 and by the following year will be extended to Sioux City, Ia. Schley asserted that although at present the Missouri river is navigable to Kansas City, lack of confidence on the part of shippers had kept river traffic at a low ebb.

Schley said the Illinois river channel will be completed in 1941, providing a waterway to the Great Lakes.

EUROPEAN NEWS SPURS MARKET TO NEW HIGHS

Reports of Acceptance of Plan by Czechs Steps Up Market Activity.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—News from Europe continued to sway the stock market today and prices had a short-lived whirl upward on reports the Czech government had accepted the British-French plan for dismemberment of their country.

Many issues spurted to new peaks for this week's recovery from the recent lows on a wave of buying in the second hour ending a slow downdrift, but part of the gains were relinquished.

In other markets trading also stepped to the tunes from Europe. Foreign dollar bonds, except for a break in Czech issues, looked up with stocks on the report the Czechs had bowed to pressure for settlement of the German minority issue. Some commodities also stiffened but wheat retreated further.

Holding part of the gains were U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Chrysler, Boeing, Philip Morris, Union Carbide, Great Northern preferred, New York Central, Loews, Public Service of New Jersey and American Smelting.

As was plain from the forenoon buying flourish, touched off by reports on financial news tickers the Czechs had capitulated, speculation still was keyed primarily to judgments on European events.

More attention was paid to rail affairs as efforts were renewed at Washington to find a solution for carrier problems.

PITTMAN CALLS DICTATORS STAR POKER PLAYERS

Senator Says They Outbluffed Chamberlain, Knew His Best Card All Time.

(By International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO—"Hitler and Mussolini are the two greatest poker players in the world, and they've known Chamberlain's hole card ever since the start."

Thus spoke United States Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, in an exclusive interview today with International News Service.

"Hitler, Mussolini and the Military clique of the Japanese government want to dominate the whole world with their forms of dictatorships," Pittman said, in answer to the question: How far do you think Hitler will go?

Pittman berated the European democracies for turning down Czechoslovakia in its hour of need.

Want Whole World!

Asked if he believed the dictatorship might finally attempt to seize the United States, Pittman said:

"They're thinking about it! They want the whole world. But they're in for a surprise if they attempt to take this country, because our defenses are supreme—and will be greater.

"That is why the United States is going to have a navy two or three times greater than the combined fleets of the dictators. Even if it costs us a few billion extra, an unconquerable fleet is the best insurance in the world."

Commenting on the current European crisis, Pittman summed them up in the word—"chaotic!"

He then said:

"The proposed settlements are characterized by the stalling British diplomacy.

"It is the same form of retreat that had commenced with violation of covenants of the League of Nation's nine-power pact by Japan, at the time Manchuria was invaded in 1932.

"The same, defeatist attitude has marked the British diplomacy ever since.

"The present abject surrender, probably, is nothing but another of a series that must inevitably continue."

The United States has never been responsible for the creation of the Czechoslovakian government or any of the other new governments in Europe, Pittman declared.

APPEALS COURT HEARS 4 CASES

District Tribunal Convenes in City to Review Actions Filed in County.

The Fifth district court of appeals convened at the courthouse today to hear four cases which had been appealed from Richland county common pleas court. The session was expected to last only one day.

In one of the suits, Helen I. Moore of near Mansfield seeks a divorce and property settlement from Charles E. Moore, to whom she allegedly was never married. Judge C. H. Huston refused the divorce in common pleas court several months ago, asserting that there are no records of the couple's marriage.

In another case set for hearing today, Edwin L. Slagel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., asks the court to uphold his action to recover a bowling award he contends he won in a Moose lodge tournament in Mansfield last March. He named Donald Renner, Mansfield, one of the sponsors of the tourney, defendant in his suit, contending that he was deprived of the award without a suitable explanation.

Two other cases involve attempts to collect industrial compensation for the death of William Murst, Mansfield, and $390 damages resulting from an automobile accident west of Mansfield in January, 1937.

The first suit was filed by Mrs. Violet Murst, widow of the accident victim, and the damage action, which names W. P. Nutter as defendant, was brought by Howard Heston.

REPAIR CABIN

ASHLAND—Plans to repair the Boy Scout cabin on the Hayesville road were made during a meeting of the Ashland district Boy Scout Council Monday evening.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the Boy Scouts will have a first aid tent at the Ashland County fair. During the fall and winter months courts of honor will be held every 60 days.

BOARD CALLS SANITARY SEWER SYSTEM 'MENACE,' ASKS SURVEY

The Mansfield board of health today called upon city council to launch a comprehensive survey of the city's sanitary and storm sewer system for the purpose of providing relief in the situation as "soon as possible."

The health board's action comes as the result of a series of complaints, submitted over a period of years, about unsanitary conditions caused by sewers in various parts of the city, members said.

Decision to request a survey was reached at a meeting yesterday. It would amount to an outline of the size, location and composition of all existing lines.

No main line intercepter sewers have been constructed in the city in the past 29 years, it was pointed out.

The health board charged that the "inadequacy" of the present sewerage system, both sanitary and storm, was a "menace" to public health.

City Engineer W. C. Statler six months ago told council he could conduct the survey after the city was informed by the state department of health that the survey would have to be made before the state would approve any further extensions in the city's sanitary sewer system.

Statler said he planned to get the survey under way but had been handicapped by the lack of men. He said he had several WPA engineers in his office but that they would require some training before being able to handle the job.

The estimated cost of the survey has been figured at $500.

Chester Walz and Wolfe were re-elected city council representatives on the board with H. E. Culbertson being chosen by the fire department members and F. D. Schell by council members to membership on the board.

T. E. Shinn and Jack B. Lentz have been re-elected to membership.

BUCYRUS—Mrs. C. C. Richards will head the American Legion auxiliary as president, having been elected at the annual election of officers Monday night. Installation will be held Oct. 3 in charge of Mrs. D. D. Luse, past district president.

STATE SUMMONS WITNESSES IN SLAYING TRIAL

Charges Accused Man Sat at Wheel of Car, Fired at Patrolman.

(By Associated Press)

CADIZ—The state summoned witnesses today in an attempt to place Peter Serino, 22-year-old Pittsburgher, in an automobile beside which, Prosecutor Fred Orum claims, State Highway Patrolman George Conn was shot to death a year ago on a lonely road near Freeport.

Orum told a common pleas court jury of ten men and two women yesterday in his opening statement that Serino sat at the wheel of the car and, with companions, opened fire upon the 28-year-old patrolman who sought to question occupants of the machine.

Furnishes Alibi.

Defense counsel claimed witnesses would testify Serino was with his mother in Easton, Pa., the night of the slaying, Sept. 27, 1937. Mrs. Josephine Serino, the mother, is a daily spectator at the trial, over which Judge Barclay W Moore is presiding.

Orum said the group responsible for the only slaying in the history of the state highway patrol included two women, one of who lay bound in the car's tonneau.

Both women had been picked up by the gang at Steubenville, Orum said, and the one held captive had "objected to their company." He said the gang returned the women to Steubenville after the slaying.

Four men and one woman were indicted in the Conn shooting. They included Serino, Charles Ford, 20, Pittsburgh negro who Orum said confessed to the crime; Bernard Masulla, 24, Pittsburgh; Booker Johnson, 42, negro now an Ohio State penitentiary inmate, and a woman named Bernice Bradley, who has not been found.

Witnesses who took the stand yesterday included Frank Hurd of Akron and C. P. Koehler of Cleveland, motorists who discovered Conn's body, wrapped roughly in burlap and tossed in a roadside ditch; Highway Patrol Supt. Lynn Black and acting Patrol Sergt. W B. Vance of the Wilmington barracks.

The death toll from the crash stood at 11. Four of the 111 persons injured were in critical condition at an Indo, Calif. hospital.

The Californian had gone on a siding near the Arizona-California border, 180 miles east of Los Angeles, shortly after 2 a. m. It was stationary when hit by the Argonaut.

CRESTLINE—A discussion regarding the new overhead bridge which is to be installed at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing on 30N at the city limits, east of Crestline was held at the regular meeting of city council Monday evening in the council chamber.

Two Lincoln highway representatives were in attendance at the meeting.

Council agreed to hold an adjourned meeting Tuesday evening to work out some plan to solve the financial end of the affair.

A resolution was passed appropriating $1,169 received from the county auditor for street tax. Street Commissioner Hauck was authorized to make the necessary repairs on Cross and Union streets. These streets were recently resurfaced with a tar and stone mix and come places along the curbing need filling.

ASKS BIDS FOR HALL AT GALION

Council Authorizes Bidding at Meeting; Storm Sewer Complaint Received.

GALION—Further steps toward the construction of a new city hall were made when city council, meeting in regular session Tuesday night, passed a resolution authorizing the service directer, Jay F. Nichols, to advertise for bids for the construction of the new building.

Another resolution passed authorized Nichols to advertise for bids for the construction of a garage and storage room at the Galion municipal light and power plant.

The city auditor, George Stinson, certified to council that the estimated life of the property and improvement of the new city building would be at least 25 years. He also certified that the maximum maturity of bonds for the building would be 25 years. If notes are issued in anticipation of the issuance of bonds, this would make the maturity of the notes two years.

A complaint was presented to council by Elmer Thatcher of Boyd boulevard that a storm sewer belonging to the city runs under his home.

SCHOOLS SHOW DECREASE OF 18 IN ENROLLMENT

Only 5 of 13 Buildings Report Gains Over Last September With 6 Having Losses.

Despite marked enrollment gains at Mansfield Senior high school and John Simpson Junior high, there are 18 fewer pupils enrolled in the city's public schools this year than in late September last year, reports to Supt. W. L. Miller showed today.

Total enrollment now is 6,303 as compared with 6,321 last year, but this year's figures are expected to exceed the 1937 enrollment before many weeks of the school term have passed, school officials said.

Only five of the city's 13 schools showed gains in enrollment over last year, while six reported losses. Two were the same as last year.

Biggest Gain at Simpson.

John Simpson junior high which is now operating on a half-day schedule because of the condemning of the third floor as a fire hazard showed a gain of 45 pupils, largest of any of the schools. Senior high was second with an increase of 43 pupils. The Bushnell enrollment increased 24.

The West Fifth street school lost the most pupils, with the enrollumnt dropping off 53 under last year. The loss at Prospect school was 36; Carpenter, 24, Bowman, 10, and Hedges junior high, 17. Western avenue and Woodland enrollments were unchanged. There are 278 in the Western school and 106 at Woodland.

Boys continued to outnumber the girls, the figures showing 3,256 boys attending classes as compared with 3,047 girls.

Present enrollments are.

Bowman, 828; Brinkerhoff, 261; Bushnell, 236; Carpenter, 243, Hedges elementary, 414; Newman, 415; Prospect, 223, Western avenue, 278; West Fifth street, 225, Woodland, 106, Senior high, 1,313; John Simpson junior high, 1,353, Hedges junior high, 291; and the Sunshine special school, 24.

RAILWAYS LOSE ON PRESIDENT'S FREQUENT TRIPS

But Prestige Of Transporting Chief Executive Balances Monetary Loss To Roads.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Railroads lose money when they carry the president of the United States, but they love it.

The loss is not a matter of free rides, for the president and those of his party pay the same fares as do ordinary citizens. An Interstate Commerce Commission regulation provides for that.

It comes because the carriers are forced to added expense in the handling of the presidential special. They must be certain that everything is perfect — that the train is not delayed, that all equipment is in order, in short, that everything has been done to assure the president a swift, comfortable and trouble-less ride.

New equipment is trotted out. The latest type engine gets a fresh coat of paint. The engineer and fireman, when notified that they are going to take out the presidential special, show up in new overalls, cap and bandana.

The job of moving the president from one city to another is an anxious one for the executives, too. Daniel Willard, head of the Baltimore and Ohio, receives a report every hour, night and day, on the progress of the Roosevelt train while on his system.

None of the big bosses wants anything to happen. On more than one occasion this correspondent has heard a railroad man heave a sigh of relief as the special was shunted to the tracks of a competing line after finishing its run on his road.

In spite of all the precautions, there occasionally is a minor incident that fosters lots of correspondence.

Several years ago when Mr. Roosevelt was speeding southward to Florida his special came to a grinding stop, the emergency brakes squealing and the passengers getting a shake-up.

A Georgia rabbit, attempting to beat the engine across the tracks, misjudged distances and was struck. Its body was rammed into an air intake pipe on the locomotive. This caused the brakes to set.

Railroad men scratched their heads It was a half hour before they discovered the cause. Then the rabbit was removed and the train proceeded.

SUES OVER DAM

Farmer Asks Damages of $500 for Flooding of Property.

Jacob L. Leuthner, Madison township farmer, today had filed a suit in common pleas court asking that the Pennsylvania Railroad company be required to remove a dam across a stream on his farm and pay him $500 for property damage resulting from flooding of land behind the dam.

In his petition, Leuthner contends that the dam causes water to back over 20 acres of his 72 acre farm in times of heavy rain, destroying crops and reducing the value of his property.

The dam was built in 1932 to provide a water supply for the railroad, Leuthner's petition states.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1938.

Now for Public School Betterments.

AS A RESULT of passing the $550,000 bond issue yesterday, Mansfield can now go forward with a million-dollar public school improvement program that will bring great benefits to this city long into the future.

Extent to which public interest was awakened to the urgent need for this building and remodeling project was evidenced by the large vote cast at yesterday's special election—832 more persons having voted on the bond issue yesterday than at the primaries on August 9, when the issue was defeated by a small margin under the required 65 per cent.

At yesterday's election the bond issue carried by a majority of 68.5 per cent, with 1,270 more favorable votes and 438 less adverse than at the primaries.

The size of yesterday's vote, together with the success of the outcome, undoubtedly reflects the determined efforts of members of the Parent-Teacher associations to spread among voters a more complete understanding of the improvement program and to acquaint residents of all parts of the city with the advantages of building two new junior high schools and carrying through extensive alterations in old grade school buildings.

Much credit also goes to members of the board of education, Superintendent W. L. Miller, and others associated with the public school system of Mansfield, for their untiring and conscientious work in behalf of the bond issue and also in formulating the preliminary program for improvements and in presenting it in such a way as to secure allocation of $450,000 in federal funds to supplement the money to be derived from issuance of bonds.

It need scarcely be said that plans intended for betterment of Mansfield's public school system have required much study and careful thought, with a sincere desire to benefit all portions of the city and to extend equal educational facilities to all children in this school district.

Now that the decision has been made, by more than a two-thirds majority, to proceed with construction of two new buildings and improvements in a number of old ones, the whole-hearted co-operation of all citizens should be given the board of education and school officials through the period required for building and remodeling, so that the work can be carried to completion without unnecessary delays and with the least possible inconvenience to present pupils.

The real value of the betterment of Mansfield's public school system by contemplated improvements will become more evident as time passes—not only to those who supported the bond issue but also to those who conscientiously opposed it.

This is a community enterprise that dared not fail—if Mansfield is to continue to progress.

Long-Time Job Has Advantages.

LONG service of a person with one employer is a compliment to both the employe and the employer.

On the one side it evidences work well done, while on the other it indicates appreciation of good work and dependability.

Recognition of extended service by employes, as is done each year by the Standard Oil company, is a fine idea, and one that might well be brought into more general practice in large and small organizations.

After all, it is the fortunate lot of the majority of people that they are required to work for a living, and observation indicates that, in a great majority of cases, those who find some congenial work and stick to it, rather than making frequent changes, are happiest in their work and also most likely to accumulate a sufficient surplus to provide for their later years or to qualify for a pension.

While the earnings in some such instances may not be as great as the apparent possibilities in some other line of employment, it is common practice for thoughtful persons to adapt living costs to income in such a way as to attain a comfortable living for self and family on what may appear to others to be small wages or salary.

It is noted, in any event, that employes who have been associated with the same company for five, ten, twenty years or more, are inclined to express satisfaction with their lot and loyalty to their organization, rather than to be grumblers and fault-finders.

Possibly the difficulties that some younger people encounter in fitting themselves into employment is that they may expect too much at the start, in order to gratify expensive habits, instead of starting at the bottom of the ladder and working upward by increasing ability and proof of dependability.

Study the man who holds a good job with a company for which he has worked many years—he isn't just "lucky."

Study of British Labor.

AMERICAN attention is turned, for a little while at least, to the way Great Britain has worked out some of the problems with which this country is now wrestling. On the whole, peaceful co-operation, or at least a spirit of mutual tolerance, seems to have taken the place of industrial warfare. It seems strange when we remember the great general strike of a dozen years ago, which prostrated British industry and aroused talk of a civil war. Also when we recall the fierce political battles fought by Lloyd George and his followers in the old days before the war.

The special American commission that went to England to study the relations of employers and employes seems to have done, on the whole, a useful and timely job. The British method of solving such problems may not make a blueprint for America, but Britain certainly has attained a high degree of industrial peace and satisfaction, on both sides, through the initiative of the government and with the gradual but now general acquiescence of employers.

Artemus Ward (1727-1800) appears to have been one of the early exponents of present-day philosophy. Anyhow, he said: "Let us all be happy and live within our means even if we have to borrow the money to do it with."

Then again, think of the difficulty of becoming accustomed to acting like a wealthy person.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—To begin with, it always amazes us that the Pilgrims ever landed at Plymouth Rock without wrecking on a reef.

It might be added that Coast Guard officers with a historical bent have studied the thing and it still mystifies them. They hate to get "soft and religious" but some of them will say there were so many chances for the Pilgrims to hit a reef that you have to lay it to something besides accident that they got through. They had no true maps and there wasn't a lighthouse along the whole coast.

These things dawn upon you as you cruise up and down the New England coast. The hazards are especially impressive at night. We had just a taste of it for a few days on a cruise aboard the Coast Guard cutter Chelan. Incidentally, the ship got its name from a lake in Washington, clear across the country from New England.

For years we have read about the "rock bound New England coast" but thought it was just a figure of speech, like rock-ribbed Republican or dyed-in-the-wool Democrat. But the coast IS rock bound. Solid granite reaches right out into the water and down many fathoms.

* * *

Granite Lurks Below.

SOME times that granite dives out of sight under the water, sneaks along for several hundred yards or a mile and then lifts a rocky elbow to a point a few feet below the surface, waiting to snag the life out of some deep-laden merchant ship.

All in all that famed shoreline presents is a forbidding appearance from the sea. But on shore a person can understand why the Down-Easters love it, in spite of the stingy supply of soil.

Take Southport, Maine. It began about 1800 when the Marr family moved in. In 1812 a British frigate sailed up the Kennebec river to Southport and the Marr family had to hide in the brush while the British pulled away all the boats in the harbor. The house and the tree of the incident are still there. Only the Marrs are gone. The Marrs kept a lighthouse for 100 years until the last lighthouse Marr died three years ago. Others moved away.

You can strike solid granite with one blow of a pick almost any place at Southport, the soil is that thin. But every kid in the place can sail a boat as easily as youngsters here roller-skate. Fish and summer colonists provide the income. The 400-odd residents who live it out the year around find the winters cold but not too bad.

"What do you do in winter?" we asked one year-arounder.

"Nothing," he said. He expanded by adding: "There's nothing to do."

* * *

One Winter Boarder.

LARGE scale commercial fishing has gone to pot. Seven fishing schooners used to harbor there. There aren't any now, although local fishing still goes on. Barren of revenue as it seems, the place doesn't have a dollar of bonded debt and no WPA crew.

There is only one real pauper in the village. When cold weather comes they lock him up for the winter.

In addition to the boat trip along the coast we had a flight over that part between Cape Cod and Boston. That emphasizes another disheartening feature about New England. There are too many factory chimneys without smoke. Our memory recalls only one pair of chimneys really belching smoke. They were at the naval torpedo station at Newport.

Hitler to Continue as War Threat

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—State, War and Navy department officials are in very general agreement that, while Herr Hitler survives, war in Europe will continue to threaten.

The idea is that, whatever he may get, he'll want more, and sooner or later a show-down will be inevitable.

It may be inevitable even in the event of Hitler's elimination. Should he be extinguished in some fashion it is recognized that he will be succeeded by one of his present vice-fuehrers, who will be almost certain to carry on just as Adolf himself has been doing.

To be sure, the original Hitler has a sort of appeal that no substitute for him perhaps could go on furnishing indefinitely. Not that Adolf is given credit for any transcendant ability, but evidently he does possess a quality of "it" that the German temperament responds to extraordinarily. He probably would be hard to replace with any guarantee of permanency.

* * *

THERE TO STAY

Still, his "liquidation" would not immediately dispose of the German war threat.

There's no promise of his early "liquidation," either.

Of his popularity in the Fatherland there is no question. He can't be voted out. He isn't going to resign. Assuredly he won't die voluntarily. Nobody likes to suggest that it would be a blessing for some one to "bump him off" with a bomb or a pistol shot. Indeed, there are folk who oppose assassination in any situation. They argue that, in the long run, it's a bad method. Furthermore, Adolf appears to be extremely competent at protecting himself against such an ending.

Parenthetically:

There are reports of a strong under-cover anti-Hitlerian sentiment in Germany. Some are to the effect that there are "antis" who wouldn't stick at the assassin's method of trying to modify the Berlin regime—if possible.

Naturally, however, Adolf objects to such a solution, both on patriotic and personal grounds, and counteracts it most efficiently—by taking no chances.

He may be right about this.

Perhaps his assassination simply would strengthen his cause.

Of course, if Hitler starts a war and loses it, he'll be disposed of automatically, just as the kaiser was.

* * *

NAZIS WILL LOSE

All expert opinion is to the effect that Germany WILL lose.

Hitler's "dope" is that the Fatherland is much better prepared to survive a conflict than it was in 1914.

Diplomats, economists and military experts think otherwise.

Their theory is that Germany can't stand an extended campaign as well as it did the last time. It wiggled through a 4-year struggle then. The best guessing is that four months would be its present limit.

They don't know whether Hitler is mistaken now—or is just bluffing.

It's immaterial, from a military and economic standpoint.

The point is:

A war will intervene!

It'll finish Hitler. But who wants to have a war to put a quietus to the Austrian house-painter?

Benito Mussolini is mixed in, too.

But Mussolini isn't so aggravating.

He has a few qualities of statesmanship.

Timely Editorial

Studying Nation's Health.

In mid-January of this year the National Institute of Health of the United States Public Health Service, in a preliminary report on a survey made in 1935-36 on the health of the nation, declared that on an average day 6,000,000 persons were unable to work or attend school because of illness or physical handicaps. This would mean an average of 200 persons ill in any one day in a town of 5,000.

In a further report on the survey, covering 800,000 families in 81 cities, the federal agency now asserts that while the average daily disability total might not run over 4,000,000, this would include at least 300,000 of the country's employables now idle who would be unable to accept jobs any one day, if offered them, due to illness. In short, if the depression should suddenly lift tomorrow 300,000 jobless persons, offered positions, would be too ill to accept them.

Surveys and reports like these mark the first nationwide diagnosis of the public health, and the essential idea of group, co-operative, self-participating medical care is seen to be more sensible as well as more imperative after each such summation of public health conditions. — Philadelphia Inquirer.

As Others See It

Carefree.

Being joyously carefree isn't proof of a gallant spirit. It merely indicates that somebody else is carrying your load. — Buffalo News.

Big Story Briefly Told.

A large part of the nation's gold supply is buried at Ft. Knox, Ky., and a large part of its huge silver supply is buried at West Point, N. Y. Also billions of the nation's capital are idle and hidden away while millions of its workers are idle and without jobs. In brief, that's a big story.—Kansas City Star.

You and Your Nation's Affairs

Jitterbug Statesmanship.

By WALTER E. SPAHR
Professor of Economics, New York University.

In the July issue of Factory, Assistant Editor Charles B. Coates told the story of the labor wars in the Akron, Ohio, rubber industries, and ended his article with these paragraphs:

"New struggles, outwardly more spectacular, loom in the near future, but history will probably record that the crucial battle to keep Akron from becoming a branch-plant town was lost when the union turned down the Goodrich proposal.

"Here the CIO blocked a reduction which, if accepted, would have left Akron wages at an average of 95 cents an hour, substantially above those in other cities and industries. Akron executives have charged that the local unionists took their orders from the CIO high command in Washington. Certainly the Lewis group had reason to fear that acceptance of the Goodrich proposal might have been interpreted as a blow to national CIO prestige. Critics of the CIO insist that the union sacrificed Akron to preserve this prestige.

"Other such minority decisions, affecting the whole future of the labor movement and the welfare of the industry in its entirety, may be expected until the law is changed to make the secret ballot available to management as well as labor. Meanwhile Akron survives as a tumble-down monument to a succession of union triumphs which have cost it 10,000 jobs and may cost it more—a city which bears testimony to the maxim that everybody loses in a labor war."

How much more industrial unrest and unemployment must we have before congress will become convinced that the one-sided Wagner act must be amended? Only 2,500 out of 9,000 employes in the Goodrich Akron plant, according to Coates, could vote on the Goodrich proposal; 6,500 were disfranchised! The employers and the majority of the employes were without an effective voice in the dispute, because of the manner in which the Wagner act functions!

If the federal government is really interested in seeing unemployment reduced, why does it not concentrate upon this and similar factors which perpetuate and cause unemployment?

One sees a remarkable phenomenon in the relatively great amount of attention given by the government to the subject of relief payments and social insurance schemes, and the very small amount of thought given to finding sane ways to lead the unemployed back to work. We act as though relief, public spending, and the piling up of a huge government debt were the sole functions of our government! And to make such governmental policies effective, the remainder seems to be devoted to politics—to political purges so that our Congress shall be a collection of rubber stamps, not representative of the people and of their best interests but of the President. The aim apparently is personal government resting upon little more than policies of spending, debt accumulation, relief payments, subsidies, and continued unemployment.

Either such a government, or the nation it governs, will die. There is definitely a limit to this sort of thing. For the moment our government, like some of our radio musicians, seems to be in the grip of "jitterbugs," but this type of song and dance cannot and will not last. Since the government's dancing seems to be increasing in frenzy, perhaps we are nearing the last stages which precede the collapse.

WORDS OF THE WISE

It is not wide reading but useful reading that tends to excellence.—Aristippus.

Listen, World!

Consistency . . . Public Enemy No. 1.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE complains. Six pages of it. "You're not consistent!" says she. "You say one thing one day and exactly the contrary the next. How on earth can one follow a writer like that?"

You can't—unless you want to get into some awful messes, lady. But did I ever ask you to follow me? Not I—perish the thought! A Follower is, to me, the lowest form of vegetable growth. Or have I ever assured anyone, anywhere, anyhow that I'd be consistent? So'elp me—I have NOT! That's one Indoor Sport I have never tried—and I don't intend to start now. What's more—I'm convinced that the so-called "virtue" of Consistency is an unnatural and unhealthy attitude which has wrought more damage to the human race than any dozen regular vices.

Nature itself is not consistent. Existence has always been a matter of "trial by error." The thing which could not go forward, which would not adapt itself, died. Was cast aside. Every yard of earth holds the record of those discarded patterns . . . those proofs that "Consistency" didn't pay. Ichthyosaurus or Etubbon Politician they're all the same. For the same rule works with man or beast. CONSISTENCY IS ALWAYS AN OREGON BOOT ON LIFE. It has blocked progress, penalized curiosity, and put the Inventor and Adventurer in stocks since the human program began.

It is not possible for a really consistent person to be wise or free, merry or kind. For Consistency implies that you adopt one line of thought and stick by it, through hell or highwater. Which might be a swell idea if you were a god, and knew everything. Or a mummy, with a pickled imagination and a petrified heart . . .

BUT HOW, I ASK YOU, CAN YOU EXPECT TO PROFIT BY CONSISTENCY IF YOU'RE JUST A DUMB, HALF-BAKED HUMAN BEING WHO DOESN'T KNOW THE ANSWERS BUT IS RARIN' TO GO?

The answer is—you don't profit. Not, at least, in any way that would appeal to a regular, red-blooded human. Nor has any Consistent Person, whom I have ever met, desired such profit. PROTECTION—NOT PROGRESS—is their aim. They simply wish to STAY PUT, without risking censure or ridicule. In other words, they wish to coddle their laziness, stubbornness, stupidity, cowardice and conceit; yet, at the same time, save their faces. And Consistency supplies them with the swellest blanket alibi on earth. It protects every angle of their cussedness—and, in addition, leaves a really lively, impulsive, inquisitive Go-getter feeling like a phoney nickel.

Ralph Waldo Emerson—a gentle soul on most subjects—gets downright tough on this particular topic. Listen—

"With Consistency a great soul has simply nothing to do . . . He may as well concern himself with his shadow on the wall."

"His shadow on the wall"—words could paint no plainer picture of a Consistent man's life. Study him for one day and you know him forever. Man's material environment may change utterly. Science may push evolution 500 years ahead by one discovery. And human nature, faced with such alterations, may be forced to make appalling adjustment . . . may need to go upon reckless adventures, lead hazardous crusades. But with all this, the Consistent Man has nothing to do. His plan is made; his course is set. Forever and forevermore, he has nothing to do but—STAY PUT.

Of all the blights in an insane world, the Stay-Putters are the champions! Right now we are witnessing endless evidence of this fact. In every home, in every institution, in every business or political organization, the Stay Putters squat . . . holding up progress, penalizing intelligence, refusing either to go forward or back—LIKE A SET OF FALSE TEETH DOWN THE BATH TUB DRAIN!

Consistent? No, Lady, I'm not. And that's why.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — We were sitting in the dimly lit confines of our favorite tavern, mooning over a spot of oolong, when this man came in. His name is Charles H. Babb. He is one of the world's most successful airplane brokers.

"What in the world are you doing in New York?" I asked him, which was a silly question in the first place, as it is well known that he has an office at Floyd Bennett field as well as one in California, and commuting to Manhattan is just a casual chore with him.

"I'm getting ready to go home," he replied, easing himself into a chair. "I take an early morning plane for Glendale. Want to come along?"

Sure, I wanted to go along, but I couldn't, and so we sat and talked for hours, this man and your correspondent, and from this talk I learned many fascinating things about airplanes and the part they are playing in commerce in remote sectors of the world.

* * *

SOME of his planes, for instance, ferry coffee off the high slopes of southern Mexico to more accessible points. The airplane has become a boon to the trade in outposts like that. Formerly the coffee bags, two at a time, were tossed over a burro's back and dispatched on a journey that required six or seven days to get it out of the rough.

"But that isn't anything, really," Babb explained. "Down in Yucatan we have planes carrying lumber out of the jungle. That's right. Lumber. Or rather, mahogany. We fly it out of the jungle on scheduled flights, and drop it into a lagoon. But our contract provides that no consignment may be dropped from a height of more than 100 feet. If you drop mahogany higher than that it impairs the grain. Our pilots swoop low over the waters of the lagoon and let 'er fall. We move thousands of feet daily. In this trade you charge by the pound, instead of by feet."

* * *

MY informant, being pressed, told us many things about airplanes which, considered not the best for this modern, highly mechanized country, were still first-rate for foreign sectors.

When the curtain fell on the usefulness of those big tri-motor planes, for instance, there were 132 of them in this country. Now there are only eight. The others? They're still great planes, Babb says. They're cargoing supplies and medicines over the impassable mountain barriers of Alaska, Central, and South America. In those countries the automobile isn't much good. But the plane, on skis, pontoons, wheels, adopts itself to any terrain and is often a godsend to beleaguered miners, hemmed in by mountainous barriers, facing starvation.

And providing planes for these assignments is Babb's business. He's a plane broker. He buys and sells. He gets a great kick out of it. He's the man who bought all of Byrd's antarctic equipment.

Babb's New York office is headed by Ed Lund, who went around the world with Howard Hughes on his recent record-shattering trip.

He thinks he has a fine organization.

So do I.

It certainly was interesting talking to a man who does things like this.

Everyday Poems

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Home, Beloved.

Each nook of this dear home I love,
Each tree, each blade of grass,
Nor would I see a single thing
From this loved picture pass.

When trees are cut away to make
Some newer plan a fact,
I weep as with the grief I feel
For friendship done; the act

Is sacrilege to me. Oh that
This place could ever be
So permanent no time or change
Could touch it, is my plea.

Putting Up the Kitchen Stove.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE mornings are chilly. We do not mind it now, since we put up, in the kitchen, a small wood heating stove. This stove combines my wife's idea of a comfortable kitchen with the utilitarian ones of heating wash water, keeping the pot boiling, and saving the man who cuts the wood. Since I do that myself, I was interested in the largest size firebox conducive to safety—so that unsplit ample chunks could be burned with ease.

This stove is firebox and nothing else. The top slides off, the front opens on hinges, the wash boiler fits upon the two-hole top, and the chunks of wood it will hold are enormous. I brought it home in the car, carried it into the house in pieces and set it up in an hour, ready for the initial fire.

We lighted some paper, laid the wood on top, and listened to the snap and roar of flames. The outer portions, when the fire grew hot, began to smoke. The two new lengths of pipe and corrugated elbow emitted an odor as the glistening newness burned off. We opened the doors and windows for a while, until the air was fresh and clean again.

How often on cold winter evenings we will draw some dry fragrant chunks of hickory, beech or maple from the box outside the door, open the top, and drop the fuel in upon the glowing coals . . . then listen to the crackling sound, as the sparks fly upward. Here we may sit and read our books and papers, by this pleasant little hearth, while the children play in comfort on the floor, or do their homework by the kitchen table.

The old oil lamp will stand upon the mantel shelf, and cast its gentle beams about the room, while dimly in the shadows up above the reflection of the radiant hearth will show. The little wood stove is a homely bit of furniture, but for all that, it warms the very heart of things.

CHAPTER 47

Noel was so astonished by Nick's unexpected words, when he told her he was taking her out of the country with him, that for a moment she couldn't speak.

"Of course I intend to marry you," Nick went on in his tight voice. "That can be arranged on shipboard. I think we had better go to the Riviera."

"You're mad — utterly mad," Noel exclaimed.

'Yes — about you. If I hadn't been, do you suppose I'd have done what I did? And now that I have you, do you think for one minute I'm going to let you go to that young doctor? Not me. Not Nick Luigi," he repeated.

"This is the twentieth century. A man can't force a girl to marry him. That time has long ago passed."

"Times may have changed, but men haven't," Nick said briefly. "There's a hundred different ways I could manage it. I could take you onto the ship on a stretcher, pretend you were ill with the aid of something to insure your being quiet. I could keep you in your cabin until the ship docked. Could either have a ceremony performed on the boat, or let it be understood that you were my wife. That I was taking you to Europe to some specialist."

"Nick, you wouldn't dare try a thing like that. You wouldn't dare!" Noel exclaimed furiously.

"Oh, wouldn't I?" he retorted. "I've gotten by with other things a lot more difficult," he went on. "There's no danger of a slip-up. None at all. However, you are right in one thing," he admitted, "the day of the racketeer is over. The government has become too smart for us. I'm anxious to settle down in one of the beauty spots of the world. I've got my pile, to say nothing of what you've got. We could have a very enjoyable life together."

"That's what you think!" Noel returned with spirit. She kept saying over and over to herself that Nick couldn't get away with this. If he slowed down again, she had made up her mind to leap from the car.

* * *

But the speedometer showed 55, now and then 60. If they were not close to town, he would have driven faster than that, Noel thought. But there might be some danger of a speed officer. "There are women," Nick began, glancing once at Noel's face, "who have found me interesting and not exactly hard to look at."

"I can believe that," Noel replied indifferently.

"I put my life in danger for you —don't you owe me something for that?"

"You're asking too much. Anything reasonable—" Noel let the sentence hang in mid-air.

"I'm only asking what I mean to have," Nick said grimly. Then he added. "You probably haven't realized it, but we're on our way to New Orleans. There's a fruit boat sailing at midnight. I believe we can make it."

Noel sat perfectly still. She knew nothing on earth would induce her to get on a boat at New Orleans, even if Nick succeeded in getting her there.

Nick was driving faster now. The speedometer jumped up to 60 —65—70. Even with Nick's skillful handling of the wheel, Noel knew they were going at a most dangerous speed.

There was little chance of making him hear her now, but Noel did beg him to slow down. The speedometer registered 75. Noel thought Nick might have read her thoughts and knew that she had been thinking of leaping from the car. Perhaps that was why he was going at such a terrible speed, so she wouldn't dare risk it.

The car wasn't a very heavy one. Noel did not know the make of it, but there were times when it actually seemed to bounce in the air.

* * *

Gradually, it came to Noel why Nick didn't dare slacken his speed. Over the roar of the motor and the rush of the wind, she could hear a car behind them. It was evidently in pursuit. Nick didn't dare slow up!

Even at that, Noel thought their pursuers were gaining She could hear the sound of the car more plainly now. It had a strange sound—not like an automobile. And yet what else could it be, she wondered

Nick said between tight lips, "If those ruffians catch us, they won't stop at anything."

A sick shudder passed over Noel. Were their pursuers the men Nick had left tied up in the house?

"I've taken money," Nick was saying above the roar of the car, "any way I could get it. But I've never shed blood. Been squeamish about that But these men are killers"

The pursuing car was still gaining. Noel carefully moved around so she could look through the glass at the rear. But all she could see was an immense cloud of dust, caused no doubt by Nick's car.

Then all at once something came hurtling through the dust, snorting, sputtering, charging like a thing possessed of demons. At last Noel could see what it was—a motorcycle. Then it couldn't be the men Nick had left behind tied up with ropes!

Noel glanced at Nick. His jaw was set grimly, he was hanging on to the wheel with all his strength and yet he must have known that his game was up.

And the next thing the motorcycle had roared past them in a whirling cloud of dust. Noel's heart sank as it disappeared. She had thought it was a motorcycle policeman, that she would be rescued Now—what?

Then she came to the realization that Nick was slowing up. At last he brought the car to a complete stop There was the motorcycle standing directly in the path of the car A figure leaped from it in cap and goggles—ran over to the car just as Nick jumped out.

"Look out!" Noel screamed. "He has a gun."

A strange thing happened then. Noel had expected to hear a shot. Instead, she saw the revolver suddenly fly up in the air to land a few feet from where the two men now stood locked in a desperate grip.

It was the work of a minute for Noel to run and pick up the gun, removing it to a safe distance against a tree, concealing it under some leaves. She didn't intend for Nick to find it, and she knew he had given the other one to Vincent.

The two men were fighting desperately, dealing each other vicious blows right and left. But it was Nick who was losing under the onslaught of such terrific blows. He might even be killed, Noel thought. She didn't want that. She couldn't hear it. "Let him go," she cried frenziedly. "He hasn't harmed me. Stop—stop, I say!"

It seemed several minutes before her voice penetrated the mind of the man who was fighting Nick with such superhuman strength. His arms fell suddenly away. Nick staggered backward, reeled groggily for a moment, then regaining his balance, he limped painfully to his car.

* * *

Noel glanced at Nick's assailant. Then a cry came from her lips, "Julian, oh, Julian!"

He had taken off the goggles and cap and stood there, panting a little. In another minute he had a protecting arm around Noel.

"It seems that your friend is a better fighter than a doctor," Nick said wryly, as he leaned against the car. "He would have killed me if you hadn't stopped him."

"Nick, please go on to Italy, or wherever it was you were going," Noel's voice was pleading.

Nick glanced questioningly at Julian, then climbed painfully into his car. "We're even, I guess," he said to Noel. For a moment his eyes lingered on her. Then he drove off.

"I supposed I did go after him like a maniac," Julian said.

"You were wonderful," Noel exclaimed. She picked up the gun, then asked how he had managed to throw it out of Nick's hand.

"Jiu jitsu," he said with a smile. Then added. "Come on. I'm taking you home. And this time you're going."

Satin and suavity combine in a fall cocktail frock trimmed with two cut-steel suns. A Paris plateau hat of black velvet, designed by Rose Valois, perches on top of the high coiffure.
